12,000,000 IN DEMAND FOR VOLSTEAD 'TEETH,' BAY STATER ASSERTS

Washington, April 12 (AP.)—From many walks of life and many States feminine voices today called upon the Senate liquor committee to stand firmly behind the Volstead act.

More than three score women witnesses, gathered here for a meeting of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, either testified against modification of the dry law or filed statements arguing for its preservation. They said they spoke for more than 12,000,000 of their sisters.

GALLIVAN HITS DRYS.

The wet side was not completely eliminated from the day's proceedings, however. Representative Gallivan, Democrat, Massachusetts, having presented a statement for the Record assailing the Volstead act as "the most un-American law that was ever put upon the statutes" and asserting that, instead of being removed from election campaigns, as predicted before its enactment, prohibition "is now the liveliest issue in national politics."

Many of the women were officials of outstanding women's organizations, and their leader, Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Massachusetts, said they voiced the sentiment of "the women, the church and the home."

Two of them took pot shots at wet Senators who have been in the forefront of the modification campaign.

Miss Nellie Burgess of Missouri, speaking for the Women's Christian Temperance Union, told Senator Reed, of that State, that prohibition

HOTEL MEN ACCUSED OF ATTACKING JUDGE'S SON

Charged with assault and battery on Edward B. Creed, son of Municipal Justice Michael J. Creed, J. J. McCarthy, one of the proprietors of the Hotel Essex, and Grant H. McGilvary, manager of the hotel, were arraigned today in Suffolk Superior Court.

The indictment on which they were arraigned was returned secretly and the appearance of the two men in court was a surprise. It created a sensation, as both McCarthy and McGilvary are among the best known hotel men inthe Hub.

They pleaded not guilty and were released in $500 bail on their personal recognizance.

Report of the alleged encounter that led to the indictment spread around only after the hotel men were arraigned in Judge Pootick's session of the court. It was then learned for the first time that young Creed was at a hospital for nearly a month.

Creed suffered from a splintered cheek bone which necessitated removal of several pieces of bone. The alleged assault occurred at the Hotel Essex on March 18 and Creed was in the hospital until last Thursday.

HOLMES IS REFUSED APPEAL; CHURCH JURY IN ALL-NIGHT SESSION

The Rev. Guy Willis Holmes, of New Bedford, Methodist Episcopal pastor, and married, was expelled from pulpit and church today at the Southern New England Methodist Episcopal Conference in South Manchester, Ct.

Graves charges made against him by Antoinette Fortin, New Bedford tearoom girl, were sustained by the select committee appointed by the conference.

With a trembling voice, the Rev. George Holmes, of Newport, R. I., reading brief of the minutes, announced to the general conference that the board upheld the girl's accusations and that the Rev Holmes was dismissed.

"Tony" Fortin, the 22-year-old girl, did not testify before committee.

Although she appeared last week before the Suffolk County Grand Jury, investigating similar charges

16 ESCAPE FLAMES, FIREMAN IS INJURED

One fireman was seriously injured and sixteen other persons were driven out today in a two-alarm fire in the three-family frame dwelling at No. 1,553 Beacon street, Brookline.

Ladderman Charles F. Love was badly cut on the right hand by an axe when a ladder slipped as he was cutting a hole in the roof.

The fire was discovered by a motorman on a passing trolley car, who telephoned in an alarm. He then rushed to the house, but found the occupants already aroused.

Flames were shooting rom the roof when firemen arrived and a second alarm was sounded because of the proximity of other apartment houses. Scores of persons living in the neighborhood were alarmed.

EXPRESS TRUCK WITH $3,000 LOAD IS STOLEN

An American Railway Express automobile truck loaded with $3,000 of merchandise was stolen today while it stood parked at the curb in Bennett street, South End. Police of the entire city are searching for two men who are believed to have jumped aboard the truck and driven off while the driver was absent.

'L' CONTROL BILL TO GO TO NEXT SESSION

The House Ways and Means Committee today reported "next annual session" on the bill to extend public control of the Boston Elevated for 20 years. The action of the committee virtually kills all chances of the bill at the present session.

There is every likelihood, it was said, that the House will accept the report.

Winthrop Coffin, a trustee of the Elevated, appeared before the committee several days ago and warned it to go slow in its consideration of the bill because the motor bus has revolutionized passenger transportation. He said there was no need for additional capital at this time.

It's a Fine Earth
Southern Boom
The Sunset Limited

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company)

SEE THIS earth while you are still here. You may not come back. It is a beautiful globe, 25,000 miles round, marvelously balanced, at even temperature, dragged by the sun through the infinite ether at absolute ether. Astronomy says the earth is "only a grain of sand attached to a minor star among the billions of flying suns." Nevertheless it is, perhaps, the only planet you will ever know. SEE IT WHILE YOU MAY.

THIS IS written between New York and California via the Pennsylvania to Washington, Southern Railway to New Orleans, then on the Sunset Limited over the Southern Pacific to the big ocean, and all the way North along the Pacific shore.

Try this route on your next trip West.

GOING BY a Northern route you may see Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City, Denver, the prairies of Kansas, where there are now more automobiles than there ever were bison.

This way you see Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, Houston, El Paso, Tucson, Yuma, most fertile spot in the world, and all the coast cities up to Seattle.

NOT TO know the Southern part of the United States is not to know your country. This way to the Pacific, just a short trip, takes in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California.

EACH OF those States has land energy, fertility, and opportunity enough for a great empire. In Texas alone you could pack away several important European nations, and that one State could raise food for all people living on earth and five hundred millions more.

Haven't we enough to attend to in this American League of Nations from the Atlantic to the Pacific without going to Europe for trouble!

THIS TRAIN is flying through North Carolina, most beautiful land, like all this Southern country the bright red earth is

CAR LEAPS RAILS, HITS POLE, 5 ARE HURT

Five passengers were hurt and glass was shattered around them early today when a one-man Reservoir-Beacon street car, outward bound, became unmanageable because of a broken axle, leaped the rails at Beacon street and Audubon road, plunged ahead twenty feet and smashed off an Edison Light Company pole.

Frank Gillis, operator, leaped back from the vestibule just in time to save himself probable serious injury. The four passengers aboard were cut and badly bruised. They were hurled from their seats with the impact of the collision.

NEW LOWS ARE SET IN NEW YORK MARKET

New York stock market closed heavy today, after another session in which liquidation appeared the rule. Numerous new 1926 lows were set. American Aggie preferred was off over 5 and the common down over 2. Motors were perhaps the weakest group.

In Boston there were losses of 2 or more points in Nash, Bingham and Eastern Steamship. Amoskeag set a new low for the year.

'Terrible Blow' for the League—MacDonald

"The League has received a terrible blow. We have to save the League." This is the cry of J. Ramsay MacDonald, first Labor Prime Minister of England, in the following article contributed by him to the London Socialist Review, in which he describes "the tragic comedy" recently enacted at Geneva.

Himself an enthusiastic supporter of the League of Nations, MacDonald paints a dark picture of Europe today. Of the so-called new Locarno spirit of international amity, he sees nothing but smoke left. He comes to the conclusion that at Geneva it got down to a game of wits, with nation pitted against nation in selfish rivalries, and that Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, has been completely out-generaled by Premier Briand of France.

By J. RAMSAY MacDONALD
First Labor Prime Minister of England.

London, April 12.—The foreign situation gets more and more disquieting. The tragic comedy played at Geneva has been watched in every quarter of the globe, and with the sole exception of Sweden—I am not sure if I may add Poland—no country has gained respect, and the poor League of Nations has been dragged pretty low. France started the trouble, and in a moment of inexplicable short sightedness Sir Austen Chamberlain dragged us in and made the subsequent deadlock inevitable.

ARMY OF WOMEN LAUD DRY LAW AS 'SALVATION OF HOME'

GALLIVAN IN HOT RAP AT ACT

had been of immeasurable benefit in Missouri, and later Mrs. Haines Simmons, presenting a dry petition on behalf of residents of New Jersey, said that Senator Edge had obtained re-election the last time by being "wet in some counties and dry in others."

Mrs. Peabody was questioned by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, and she told him in reply to his first interrogation that the only change in the Volstead Act to which the women would agree would be a move to give it more power.

"We stand for the strengthening of the Volstead Act rather than its modification," she said. "We want it enforced by officials who are in sympathy with it."

"Are you satisfied with Section 29 of the Volstead Act?" asked Senator Reed.

"I am not acquainted with that section," Mrs. Peabody said.

"That is the section about fruit juices," put in Senator Harreld, Republican, Oklahoma.

"We stand for the strongest thing in enforcement and the weakest thing in liquor," Mrs. Peabody replied, and the crowded committee room broke into applause.

Mrs. E. H. Silverthorn, president of the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions, said she appeared for prohibition on behalf of 3,000,000 women members of foreign mission boards.

"All the world is looking to America on this great question of prohibition," she said. "They are weighing and judging what America is doing."

Martha Hamon, of New York, a lieutenant colonel in the Salvation Army, appearing as the representative of Commander Booth, said conditions among the poor had improved under prohibition.

"The children wear better shoes and stockings now than they did" she said.

She added that fewer cases of intoxication were handled by her organization than formerly.

"Do the children you come in contact with complain to you about bootlegging?" asked Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana.

"Well, yes," was the reply. "Their mothers complain to them, and they tell us about it."

"Don't you know that liquor can be obtained in thousands of places in New York city," asked Senator Reed.

"That is true," Colonel Hamon replied.

SAYS WIVES 'DRY.'

"Then if a man wants to get drunk he can do so?"

"If he has money enough."

Mrs. Nell O. Burger of Springfield, Mo., spoke for the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"The W. C. T. U. is mobilizing half a million of women for law enforcement," she said. "These legionnaires may demand the return of light wine and beer, but the wives and children of the workingmen, who for the first time have decent clothing and food, will not join in that demand."

Looking straight at Senator Reed, she added that "prohibition has been of immeasurable benefit to my home State of Missouri." She read from a newspaper that from 8 a. m., April 7, to 8 a. m., April 8, there was not an arrest in St. Louis.

"That was so startling that it really became news," interjected Senator Reed. "Do you know whether that resulted from the fact that the police were off duty or from the great moral wave sweeping over the city?"

"I hope it was due to the moral wave," said Mrs. Burger, as the crowd laughed.

Mrs. D. E. Wald, speaking for the Council of Women for Home Missions, urged enforcement of the law not only in the United States but in all territory where "the American flag flies." She cited conditions in a Winter in Porto Rico.

"Isn't it a fact that vast quantities of liquor are consumed by the natives in Porto Rico?" asked Reed.

"The fact is that since Porto Rico passed its own enabling law the production of liquor has decreased," the witness replied.

"I asked you about consumption, not production," said Reed.

Madre Marshall, chairman of young women's work of the Northeastern Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, and representing also the Southern Baptist League convention, declared prohibition had improved the morals of the negro race.

MORE GIRLS DRINK.

Mrs. Katherine Foster, representing the Baptist Board of Education, was the last of the church witnesses.

She described conditions in schools and colleges, saying that more was heard now about women students drinking than before prohibition, but that "conditions have improved among the men students."

A dry petition signed by citizens of New Jersey was presented by Mrs. Haines Lippincott of Camden, representing the law enforcement committee of that State.

"Just a moment," said Senator Reed as Mrs. Lippincott started to leave the stand. "You have had some elections in New Jersey since prohibition. Wasn't Senator Edge elected on a wet platform?"

"In some counties he was wet and in some counties was dry," Mrs. Lippincott replied. "I heard him make wet speeches one week and dry speeches the next week."

Mrs. Lippincott declared Senator Edge rode into office "on the coat tail of President Coolidge," running far behind the Republican ticket.

Improved conditions in New England under prohibition were described by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston, chairman of the New England section of the Woman's National Enforcement Committee.

The "main troubles with prohibition enforcement" were set forth by Mrs. William Tilton, national chairman of legislation for the Congress of Parents and Teachers.

PASTOR, DENIED APPEAL, CRIES 'FRAMEUP!'

against the New Bedford minister as made by her, she refused to appear before the church committee, her counsel declaring that she did not wish him dismissed, as a settlement the minister had made upon her would be affected.

Generally, the charges on which the Rev. Holmes was dismissed today were those of "un-ministerial conduct" and immorality.

Although none except the committee and witnesses knew what went on at the hearings or to what extent the testimony went, it had been expected confidently earlier today that the minister would be acquitted and exonerated.

VERDICT WAS SURPRISE.

Therefore the conviction of the minister by his associates came as a bitter surprise to the laymen attending the convention at South Manchester and to the Methodist Episcopal followers of the Rev. Holmes in New Bedford, where he was pastor of the Pleasant Street Church.

Not features brought about the change in sentiment to one that he would be exonerated.

At first, the thumbs were turned down against him, but when "Tony" Fortin refused to appear against the cleric, the feeling changed and, until her counsel made his statement, her refusal was looked upon as an admission that she had nothing to tell.

A second feature was the number of witnesses who were believed to have asserted that the minister was being "railroaded" out of the church.

When the conference had received the decision, the entire body rose and began the singing of a hymn. They had swelled their voices in only a few bars when the Rev. Holmes, who had been notified at his rooms, No. 24 Pine street, South Manchester, appeared at the entrance at one side, down near the front of the auditorium.

APPEAL REFUSED.

His face was drawn and haggard and he appeared ill. After a glance or two about the church he was given over to Dr. Scrivener and asked that he be allowed to appeal the committee verdict in an address to the conference.

Dr. Scrivener, however, shook his head and the Rev. Holmes, turning abruptly at the refusal, mounted the rostrum and made the same request to Bishop Richardson, in charge of the conference.

The bishop's manner was cold as he, too, refused, and then the untrocked minister went to his counsel, the Rev. F. W. Coleman of North Cohasset, and arranged with him to submit a written appeal which the bishop later accepted and instructed the secretary to forward to the judicial board of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"The fight has just begun," the dismissed clergyman asserted when he had collected himself. "When a man is innocent, that is enough to carry him through. Of course, the bishop denied my appeal to the conference, because he directed the verdict," Holmes added bitterly.

"I am an innocent man and the victim of a frameup."

SLAYER OF OSTRICH GRANTED CONTINUANCE

Three charges were preferred today in West Roxbury Court against William C. McIntyre, of No. 1937 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, accused of strangling the big male ostrich to death at Franklin Park. McIntyre was charged with breaking and entering the ostrich shed, cruelty to animals and creating a disturbance. Through counsel, McIntyre, who tells an apparently straightforward story of complete drunkenness on the night in question and who says he remembers nothing of his travellings, requested a continuance to April 16, which Judge Perrine granted. He is at liberty under bonds of $1,000.

F. W. Whitemore, who is traveling companion of the former secretary, said Mr. Weeks was apparently convalescing. Mrs. Weeks is with her husband.

SCIENTIST SEES AMERICAN TYPE DEVELOPING

New England is largely the home of the "Old American" type of American that Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian Institution describes in the book that won for him the Huxley Memorial medal of the Royal Anthropological Institute, a signal recognition of his painstaking research.

Dr. Hrdlicka's book, "Old Americans," published by the Williams & Wilkins Company of Baltimore, is in great demand at the Public Library as a result of the award.

Residents of Boston and surrounding cities and towns, and communities throughout the New England States were studied, measured and classified, and examined as to their family trees, in the investigation that led Dr. Hrdlicka to conclude that a distinct type was in process of formation in the United States.

Miss Olive Bachelor of Dorchester is one of those studied, and she is classified as "of old American ancestry on both sides." Others were T. D. Woodbridge of Boston, Professor Richard S. Lull of Yale, Henry D. Hooker of New Haven, Miss Betsey Bull of Clinton, Ct.; Professor Franklin B. Dexter of Yale.

Woodbridge's family history showed no admixture of European blood since 1650.

NEW RACIAL TYPE.

The "old American" stock that constitutes practically a new racial type, according to Dr. Hrdlicka, closely resembles the English, Scotch and Irish types than any other, but is as different from any of these as they differ from one another.

If these families could remain without a mixture of foreign blood for more centuries, the distinct American type would be further crystallized, the scientist declares, but the gradual encroaching of newer racial elements on the localities where the exclusive stock remains, makes this end virtually impossible.

Therefore, argues Dr. Hrdlicka, the "Old American" type will give way to a new American type which will be a blend of the older stock with immigrants. This is the future "real American."

This future type is seen by the anthropologist as being much like the Old American type of today, but different somewhat, especially in physiognomy and in behavior—more sanguine in nature, and probably less "spare" in physique, although tall in stature.

Famous Oration to Be Read Over Burbank

At request of Luther C. Burbank, the following famous "funeral oration," delivered by Robert G. Ingersoll, noted agnostic, at the bier of his brother, Ebon C. Ingersoll, in Washington in 1879, will be read over the late plant wizard's own grave by his lifelong friend, Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver:

My Friends: I am going to do that which the dead oft promised he would do for me.

The loved and loving brother, husband, father, friend, died where manhood's morning almost touches noon, and while the shadows still were falling toward the West.

He had not passed on life's highway the stone that marks the highest point, but being weary for a moment, lay down by the wayside, and, using his burden for a pillow, fell into that dreamless sleep that kisses down his eyelids still. While yet in love with life and raptured with the world he passed to silence and pathetic dust.

TRAGEDY IN EVERY LIFE.

Yet, after all, it may be best. Just in the happiest, sunniest hour of all the voyage, while eager winds are kissing every sail, to dash against the unseen rock, and in an instant hear the billows roar above a sunken ship. For, whether in mid-sea or 'mong the breakers of the farther shore, a wreck at last must mark the end of each and all. And every life, no matter if its every hour is rich with love and every minute jeweled with a joy, will, at its close, become a tragedy as sad and deep and dark as can be woven of the warp and woof of mystery and death.

This brave and tender man in every storm of life was oak and rock, but in the sunshine he was vine and flower. He was the friend of all heroic souls. He climbed the heights and left all superstitions far below, while on his forehead fell the golden dawning of the grander day.

HUMANITY HIS RELIGION.

He loved the beautiful, and was with color, form, and music touched to tears. He sided with the weak, and with a willing hand gave alms; with loyal heart and with purest hands he faithfully discharged all public trusts.

He was a worshipper of liberty, a friend of the oppressed. A thousand times I have heard him quote these words: "For justice all place a temple, and all seasons, Summer." He believed that happiness was the only good, reason the only torch, justice the only worship, humanity the only religion, and love the only priest.

He added to the sum of human joy, and were every one to whom he did some loving service to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep tonight beneath a wilderness of flowers.

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of a wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but, in the night of death hope sees a star, and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing.

He who sleeps here, when dying, mistaking the approach of death for the return of health, whispered with his last breath, "I am better now." Let us believe, in spite of doubts and dogmas, and tears and fears, that these dear words are true of all the countless dead.

And now to you who have been chosen, from among the many men he loved, to do the last sad office for the dead, we give his sacred dust. Speech cannot contain our love. There was, there is, no greater, stronger, manlier man.

BURBANK WILLS 'SIMPLE RITES' FOR FUNERAL

Santa Rosa, April 12 (A.P.).—Crushed as a youth when the flower of his love wilted and died, Luther Burbank sought solace in the culture of earthly plants.

That, in brief, is the hidden story of the life of the eminent scientist who lay in the quiet sleep of death in his garden wonderland here today.

At Burbank's request, Judge Ben Lindsey will recite the famous funeral oration which Robert Ingersoll, noted agnostic, spoke at the bier of his brother, Eben C. Ingersoll, in Washington in 1879.

Burbank's final resting place has not yet been definitely decided upon, although his friends hope to lay him to rest in the midst of the garden he loved so well.

PENS LAST MESSAGE.

Burbanks last written words were of the spiritual nature of man.

"Do I ignore what is generally called the spiritual nature of man? It is the corona, the flower of life, the fruit of which is altruism, the desire to help ourselves and others to higher and better thoughts and actions—in other words, to a more perfect state of harmony and environment."

Unostentatious in life, Burbank willed that his last rites be simple. Judge Lindsey and Rev. Caleb S. Dutton of San Francisco, Unitarian minister who married Mr. and Mrs. Burbank ten years ago, will address public memorial services in the open air in one of Santa Rosa's parks. The Masonic order, which had conferred upon Burbank the thirty-third degree, will perform the ritual of the dead.

PASTOR LAUDS HEARST'S 'CHRISTIAN CURE FOR CRIME'

"EYE FOR EYE" DOCTRINE IS SCORED IN SERMON

COUPLE SEIZED IN HOTEL, MAN IS SUED FOR $50,000

EDITORIAL

BIG AID IN SOLVING PROBLEM

Rev. Frank Fasano Agrees That Criminals Cannot Be Curbed by Punishment

"We can cure criminals only by a practical application of the principles of Christianity."

Urging his parishioners to read the editorial of William Randolph Hearst, which appeared under the above caption, the Rev. Frank Fasano, pastor of the West End Baptist Church, made an eloquent plea in his Sunday sermon for the reforms Mr. Hearst urges.

The editorial, he characterized as "one of the best expressions of Christianity of our day and the more remarkable because it comes not from a clergyman but from a layman."

Quoting freely from the editorial, the Rev. Fasano reiterated Mr. Hearst's assertion that "we cannot cure criminality by punishment, but only by education and by a practical application of the principles of Christianity."

CRIMINALS ARE NOT BORN.

Dr. Fasano supplemented the editorial with a text from Proverbs, 22, 6: "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he shall not depart from it."

The sermon, in part, follows:

"There is no born criminal. A man is made a criminal by his surroundings. Even the people must say that they act according to conscience forget that even conscience need be educated.

"People have tried to cure crime by punishment. Men have been hanged and electrocuted, but we are a living testimony that crime has not been exterminated.

"This proves that it is not a question of intellectual training but the training of the central control of our being, the heart. Why our very prisons contain lawyers, doctors, men of science, yes, even clergymen. Does not this prove as Mr. Hearst's editorial points out, that criminals are indications of the failure of our educational system? It is not a matter of mere education or training, but something more than that.

"I call to your attention the case of Zeoli, the evangelist. He says: 'Twice men put me in the House of Correction and tried to correct me; they didn't succeed. Then I was sent to the reformatory to be reformed. They failed. My life was changed only when a negro in prison handed me the Bible.'

MUST TRAIN HEART.

"This young man, although lacking in culture, received the train-

Rev. Frank Fasano, pastor of the West End Baptist Church, used an editorial on capital punishment written by William Randolph Hearst as his topic in an eloquent sermon.

The Rev. Mr. Fasano is shown here in characteristic poses as he quoted liberally from the editorial, denouncing "the revenge of the law."

He declared, as did Mr. Hearst, that criminals are not born, but are made by the wrongs of society. He said penal institutions graduate more criminals than they reform.

"Punishment is no cure for crime. We have tried that and found it woefully lacking in results," he said.

"Proper training must come from the heart," he declared. "Love and gentleness will save many men who now are doomed."

HUSBAND OF WOMAN RELENTS

Demands Heart Balm, but Secures Release of Pair by Plea in Court

Arrested today in a Back Bay hotel on a statutory charge, Mrs. Mae Doyle of Newton and Ernest C. Collopy, reputed wealthy automobile dealer of Hartford, Ct., were found guilty by Judge Michael J. Creed in Municipal Court and placed on probation.

Collopy, just before the hearing, was served with papers in a $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Walter Doyle, husband of Mrs Doyle.

HUSBAND LENIENT.

The arrest of the couple was made on complaint of Doyle. Mrs. Doyle escaped a House of Correction sentence when her husband expressed a wish that the court be lenient.

The court said: "This is a very hard case to dispose of because of the apparent attitude exhibited by the woman defendant. She shows by this attitude that she has very little thought for the seven-year-old son whose future she is entirely responsible for."

JUDGE RELENTS.

Judge Creed said that he was disposed to send Mrs. Doyle to the House of Correction, but that he would abide by the judgment of her husband.

Doyle asked for leniency and said he believed that the money Collopy had spent on Mrs. Doyle had turned her head.

Judge Creed placed the defendants on probation with the warning that they must separate at once or he would deal with them more severely.

PRAYS AS DADDY IS ACCUSED OF KILLING 'MA'

While seven-year-old Peter Lombardi joined his small hands together in prayer, his father, Joseph Lombardi, of No. 282 North street North End, was arraigned in municipal court today, charged with the murder of his wife, Jennie.

The woman's body, with no marks of violence visible, was found in the Lombardi tenement by the boy, the cause of death a mystery which police are investigating.

The husband and father, notified of his wife's death while playing cards at the home of a neighbor, rushed to his own house, where he was arrested while protesting his innocence.

Bureau drawers had been ransacked and Mrs. Lombardi's empty pocketbook was found near the body. A handkerchief had been placed over the face of the dead woman, whose forehead was slightly bruised. The police were inclined to believe the woman had been killed by robbers until the boy said his parents had quarrelled over his mother's extravagance, particularly the purchase of a fur coat.

Lombardi sobbed hysterically when he saw his wife's still form, and was taken to headquarters still weeping. In court today he pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for a hearing April 15.

PASSAIC STRIKE LEADER FACES 40 YEARS

Passaic, N. J., April 12 (A.P.)—Albert Weisbord was held in $50,000 bail today by Police Judge Davidson on three charges preferred by Passaic detectives.

He was returned to jail while attempts were made to raise the bail. Two of the charges were preferred by City Detective Tottosnack.

One of these alleged that on October 20, 1925, Weisbord in a speech in Neubauer's Hall had incited, promoted and encouraged hostility against the government of the United States and the State of New Jersey.

The second Tottosnack charge alleged that on April 8, in Ukranian National Hall, Weisbord had advocated assault and attack on non-strikers.

The third charge, preferred by Detective Ekchardt, recited that the organizer on February 4, in Ukranian Hall, had incited opposition to the government.

Fines totaling several thousand dollars or imprisonment for from fifteen to forty or fifty years can be imposed if Weisbord is found guilty of all three complaints.

Attleboro, April 12.—Herbert Grosse, aged 5, of Attleboro Falls, died today at Sturdy Memorial Hospital, following injuries received when he ran in front of an automobile operated by Miss Anne G. Cushing of Providence.

CHASE SCORES IN FIGHTING MENCKEN

The combat between J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society and Henry L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, was continued in two local courts today, with the Watch and Ward Society representative one up at the close of proceedings.

In East Cambridge District Court Judge Arthur P. Stone, disagreeing with the decision of Judge Parmenter in Boston central district court last week, fined a Harvard square newsdealer $100 for selling this month's Mercury.

JUDGE STONE'S RULING.

Although the defendant, Felix Caraglianos, declared he sold the magazine only to Harvard professors and students, Judge Stone ruled that "Hairlock," the now famous article contained in this month's issue was corrupting to the morals of the young.

J. Frank Chase made the complaint, and it was prosecuted by Edward A. Whitman for the Watch and Ward Society, while Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for Mencken, appeared for the defendant, who appealed.

Practically the same lineup of forces, with the exception of the newsdealer, appeared before Judge George W. Anderson in Federal Court. Mencken, through Attorney Hays, attempted to secure a temporary injunction against Chase, restraining him from interfering with the April number of American Mercury. He also sought a permanent injunction to prevent interference with future numbers.

IN U. S. COURT TOMORROW.

Both actions were to have been preliminary to a trial of the $50,000 damage suit Mencken and the magazine have filed in Federal Court against Chase and the society he represents.

After the time of day had been passed by Attorneys Hays and Whitman, with several caustic cracks added, Judge Anderson broke up the party by declining jurisdiction on the ground he is a member of the Appellate Court for this district. He requested the district court clerk to assign the case for hearing before a district court judge during the afternoon or tomorrow.

'SUICIDE SHIP'S' JINX ON JOB; 15 MISSING

Shelburne, N. S., April 12 (A.P.)—With her flag flying at half-mast and the body of her skipper, Captain Alden Geele, who died by his own hand, lying in the town of Shelburne, a jinx seems to be pursuing the Gloucester schooner Thomas S. Gordon, now at anchor here.

Acting on instructions from Ottawa, Collector of Customs Bruce had refused to grant clearance papers to the Thomas S. Gordon. The schooner, it is stated, sailed from Gloucester with clearance papers showing a crew of twenty-two men, but when she arrived in Shelburne Harbor she had only a crew of seven men, according to Mr. Bruce. The supposition is that she intended shipping the rest of the crew hereontrary to International fisheries' regulations.

The American owners have instructed Captain John Mackenzie, an American citizen living at Shelburne, to take command of the schooner. According to international regulations, an American schooner may put into Canadian ports in case of illness on board, need of shelter from storms or for food, but she cannot ship a crew.

FREES U. S. OF $5,000,000 WAR-TIME CONTRACTS

Washington, April 12 (I.N.S.).—The government was absolved today by the Supreme Court from liability for damages caused by cancellation of war time cotton linter contracts amounting to some $5,000,000. The claim was prosecuted by the Hartsville Oil Mill Company and represented 285 small cases. The U. S. Court of Claims had denied the validity of their claims, and the Supreme Court concurred today.

WIFE ARRESTED, RIVAL SUED BY HUSBAND

Mrs. Mae Doyle found in Back Bay hotel with Ernest C. Collopy, wealthy auto dealer of Hartford, Ct. Collopy was served with papers in a $50,000 alienation suit brought by the woman's husband, Walter Doyle. Collopy and the woman were freed on probation when her husband pleaded for leniency in court.

AUTOISTS HELD IN 4 DEATHS

In connection with the deaths of four Somerville boys from automobiles within the last ten days, four men were arraigned today in Somerville District Court, each charged with operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

Decision will be rendered Friday by Judge Ralph M. Smith on the case of Vance Crosby of Gardner street, Arlington, who was given a two-hour hearing. Earl A. Ross of Connecticut avenue, Somerville, and Frank Raffelle of Joseph street Somerville, will be tried on April 19 and Richard Kerber of Chamonez street, Brighton, on April 22.

Aside from these cases, William H. Greenough of Medford was found guilty of drunkenness and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction by Judge Sturtevant. He appealed and was held in $600 bail for the Superior Court.

James A. Ellsworth of Dwyer circle, Medford, a foreman employed by the telephone company, was held in $600 for the May term of the Grand Jury on similar charges. Ellsworth declared the odor on his coat was from shellac.

GRIP NEAR EPIDEMIC, NURSE REPORT SHOWS

Grip, pneumonia and respiratory diseases were so prevalent in March as to almost approach an epidemic, Florence M. Patterson, general director of the Community Health Association, said today at the meeting in the Park Square Building. Nursing was the heaviest since February, 1920, in the influenza epidemic.

Miss Patterson's report showed 4,141 new patients, 27,023 visits and a daily average of 127 nurses in the field. Seven hundred cases of grip were under care, 319 cases of bronchitis, 248 of pneumonia and 459 of other respiratory diseases.

DRUGGIST ERRS; $8500 VERDICT

Brockton, April 12.—A verdict of $8,500 was won today by Mrs. Edward O. Williams, who claimed she was given sulphate instead of epsom salts at a drug-store. Her husband was awarded $500 for loss of her services and companionship during the period of illness that was said to have followed taking the substitute. They asked $20,000. A jury in Plymouth County Superior Court returned the verdict.

Boston Can't Keep Lower Rate on Hard Coal

Washington, April 12 (A.P.).—The Interstate Commerce Commission has denied petitions that emergency rates prescribed on coal from Pennsylvania to New England points during the anthracite suspension be made permanent or continued in effect pending establishment of permanent rates.

The emergency schedules expire April 30. The commission said its action today was not to be construed as prohibiting the carriers from voluntarily continuing the present rates for such additional time beyond April 30 as in their judgment necessity might require.

The commission reopened the proceedings for more hearings at a date to be fixed later, to determine the reasonableness of rates on bituminous and semi-bituminous coal and coke from other

ILL, NOT DRUNK IS DEFENSE OF BUTLER HOST

Society Women Attend Colonel Williams' Court-Martial; Prosecution Is Heard

San Diego, Cal., April 12 (I.N.S.)—Col. Alexander Williams was sick, not drunk on the night of March 6 when he appeared at the Hotel Del Coronado in the presence of Brig.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who accused him of being drunk.

That was the testimony of Capt. Russell Gates of the Marine Corps here today at the Colonel's court-martial. Captain Gates was the first witness for the prosecution. "I am sick and want to go home," the witness testified he heard the accused officer say about 10 o'clock the night he is charged with having been intoxicated.

Captain Hermle announced the defense probably would use almost entirely the same witnesses as the prosecution.

When Colonel Williams entered the courtroom society women in the crowd of spectators rushed to his side and wished him good luck. Four legal advisers will conduct Williams' defense.

2 N. E. SAILORS DYING IN BLAST

Timothy Fitzmaurice of No. 21 Ley street, Dorchester, was among the seriously injured in the explosion of the oil tanker Gulf of Venezuela which blew up at Port Arthur, Tex., killing twenty-five men and causing severe injuries to ten others, of whom five are expected to die.

Another New England man, who, like Fitzmaurice, is not expected to survive the tragedy, is P. F. Morrill of No. 113 Whittier street, Portland, Me.

Besides the twenty-five dead, two seamen were still unaccounted for as the charred hulk of the tanker rode in harbor today in grim evidence of the worst oil disaster in the history of the "Sabine District."

Investigations launched to determine the cause of the explosion, which occurred while gasoline was being pumped aboard, revealed that gas formed from a leak and was touched off, possibly, by steam pipes.

The disaster was the seventh in the oil industry within a week, with a total loss of sixty lives and millions of dollars worth of crude and refined oils.

ing of the heart. His tendencies which were once devoted to crime made around about face and turned in the right direction.

"The instruction received in the early stages of life will determine the career of a man due to the logical succession of ideas. What will be the child's first thought? The second will depend on that.

"How completely our penal machinery has failed is very aptly shown by Mr. Hearst. He says: 'On the very day on which Chapman was to be hanged for killing an officer of the law, another officer of the law was killed by another criminal.'"

"It is the business of the State to see that everything possible be done for its citizens, that they be properly trained and brought up in a pure atmosphere.

URGED TO READ EDITORIAL.

"Mr. Hearst says, 'The law has tried the theory of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" for thousands of years, as long, in fact, as there has been law, but all to no effect.'

"We know it has failed. We must invoke the law of love, we must intervest ourselves in our fellowman and not pass them by because they are inferior.

"The words of Christ were given to us to soften us, civilize us, to save us, as the editorial says. I want you to read it. It is an expression of practical Christianity and the more remarkable because it was written not by a clergyman but by a layman."

In concluding, Dr. Fasano reiterated the assertion of the editorial that our whole penal system has broken down because it is built on sand. He said:

"We shall never succeed by building on sand and guesses. History is the teacher of life. History has shown us that the past is a failure. Let us build on rock, not sand."

Revivalist to Use Hearst Editorial as a Text

Los Angeles, April 12 (Universal)—William Randolph Hearst's editorial, "We can cure Criminals only by a practical application of the principles of Christianity," will form the basis of a sermon which will be preached by Dr. Charles H. Shreve, new pastor at Angelus Temple, when he begins a 10-day revival campaign Wednesday.

"Mr. Hearst's words," said Dr. Shreve, "are the truest that have ever appeared in a newspaper. For hundreds of years now, the people of this Earth have been endeavoring to curb crime with punishment. Fines, imprisonment and even death on the scaffold are no deterrent to crime or criminals. This has been proved time and time again, and will continue to be proved as long as we maintain the present system.

LEAGUE IS CRIPPLED, SAYS MacDONALD

'MUST SAVE IT' BRITISH LABOR LEADER CRIES

One part of the drama—Sir Austen Chamberlain, pleading for a free hand from his own country, while he was bound hand and foot to another—was particularly sinister. One wonders if one was dreaming and would wake to laugh at the wild absurdity of the uncontrolled human fancy. Another circumstance arising out of this affair is of grave international importance.

We have been told that Spain has threatened to punish Sweden on account of opposition which Mr. Undén (Swedish foreign minister) took to his claim for a permanent seat on the council. This is a serious matter and strikes at the very root of league policy. That sort of conduct ought not to be tolerated by the other nations in the league, for it would soon finish the league altogether.

There are so many ways of settling the differences that still exist while I write this, that, in spite of the groans that some of the men concerned have given to the press, I cannot believe that no one will be adopted. But, unfortunately, the mischief has been done.

The league has received a terrible blow. It has become the seat of jealousies, rivalries, threats, Manipulation. And it will not only have to banish them but live down suspicions. The cruel thing is that by the exercises of very ordinary foresight and common sense the worst of the trouble could have been avoided.

Imperialist Appetites

Nor is it only from Geneva that disquieting news comes. The words Mosul and Iraq do not appear at present in our newspapers, but the results of our mishandling of this matter at the last council of the League are steadily ripening. Why we accepted that 25 years' mandate without making any attempt to delay a decision on that point, seeing that it could make no difference until 1928, I do not understand. The reasons given are not sufficient. We have committed ourselves beforehand to accept such a condition to the award on the boundary.

The only explanation that fits the facts is that our representatives were controlled by the commercial appetites of imperialists. That awkward and dangerous school trouble in Constantinople marks the worsening of our relations with Turkey, and I hear from Angora how bad our general relations are becoming. While we are not represented there, other nations are, and their representatives are taking full commercial and other advantages of our unpopularity.

The Turks believe that the interview between Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mussolini dealt with their affairs, among other things, and the Italians are certainly digging themselves in economically, especially by the extensive purchase of land, and by the development of the Island of Rhodes.

Reactionary Policy

Such at any rate is my information from one who knows the life of Angora intimately. He left me a translation of an article on the Russo-Turkish treaty written by a Turkish deputy and published in the official newspapers of the Turkish government. It praises the labor government, and the protocol, and summarizes what has happened since that government came into power. It contends that against our "well thought out and logical opinions" is the imperialism of big business, financiers and reactionary politicians who are pursuing a policy hostile to the nationalists of the East, and to Turkey and Russia in particular.

To defend themselves against this attack, the Russo-Turkish treaty has been signed (and I may add, Russia has built an expensive embassy in Angora). In the article one gets the usual misstatement of facts, such as that I went to India to attend a conference, but they are no worse than appear in some London newspapers. Such is the propaganda, and our government appears to have lent itself to it.

I await the publication of the Turco-French agreement. I am assured it will be interesting and informing reading. Locarno, I see it in my tobacco smoke as a kind of dreamy far-off, divine event from which the whole creation moves.

Disgraceful Failure

I confess I did not believe, until I actually heard Sir Austen Chamberlain announce it, that the Geneva meeting would have ended in such a disgraceful failure. Of course, the people responsible will make fine speeches about the preservation of the Locarno spirit and blame everybody but themselves. The Brazil delegate bears not a tithe of their blame. They outraged the league by their intrigues, they stand discredited equally for their incompetence and their methods.

Mr. Undén alone of those in the forefront of the battle has come out with enhanced credit, and deserves the gratitude of everyone who cares for, and believes in, the league.

I wished to give Locarno the heartiest welcome while being profoundly suspicious of its methods. Now its authors have destroyed it because they were so pleased with themselves that they never saw its dangers.

M. Briand has completely outmaneuvered Sir Austen Chamberlain, and run off with the laurels. I feared as much. Now, we have to save the league, but that can be done only by a complete reversal of the Chamberlain policy of having no policy except to accommodate others.

ENDS LIFE WITH MAIL PISTOL

Stoughton, April 12.—Crippled and in a cast as a result of an accident, James Reilly, sixty-eight, blew his brains out today with a revolver obtained through the mail.

Although still partially in the cast, Reilly was able to limp on crutches to a barber shop. After getting a clean shave, he returned to his room at the Sebago House, fired a test shot through the wall and then shot himself through the right temple.

Reilly, who was a widower, was injured by falling down an elevator well in Manchester, N. H. He left a note to Assistant Medical Examiner Ewing, giving directions for the handling of business matters. He was unable to work, and fellow lodgers said he was moody.

BRIDAL COUPLE GREETED BY IRISH CLUB

By JAMES WALSH.

The meeting of the County Down Club last night in Auxiliary Hall, Hibernian building, Roxbury, resulted in a surprise for two of its members, Elizabeth Gilmore and Michael Keenan, who are to be married today. The couple were the recipients of hearty congratulations, the meeting taking the form of a reception. Joseph Magennis, a member of the club and president of the Central Council of Irish County Associations, presented them with a chest of silver on behalf of the members.

The annual May party of the association will be held in O'Connell Hall on May 13. The Rev. Farmer Naughton addressed the members on the proposed Father Griffin Memorial, in aid of which a grand reception and ball will be held in East Armory on Wednesday evening April 28.

The meeting of the Waterford Association in St. Rose Hall, No. 17 Worcester street, South End, last night, took the form of a reception to Mrs. Henry Nau, one of its members, who sails for her home in Waterford next Sunday. James H. Phelan, president of the association presented Mrs. Nau with a handsome traveling bag on behalf of the members.

An entertainment followed the meeting, the singers including Alfred Boyle, the Waterford tenor; Miss Nonie Dillon, Miss Catherine Jennings and John W. Noonan. The committee included Andrew J. Gardiboth, Thomas Lenane, Patrick Kelly, John Barron, Miss Nora McGrath, Miss Joanna Dunphy and Miss Cath erine Lenane. A collation was served.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Tipperary Men's Association in Sarsfield Hall, Hibernian Building. Arrangements were completed for the third annual reunion and ball of the County Tipperary Hurling Club in O'Connell Hall on Thursday evening, April 15. William C. Frost, supreme trustee of the Knights of Columbus, and many prominent State and city officials, as well as the officers of the Central Council and the several Irish county associations, have been invited.

The annual reunion, whist and dance of St. Patrick's Club will be held tomorrow night in Paine Memorial Hall, Appleton street, South End. The committee in charge includes William Crowley, Michael Walsh, Patrick F. Hanlon, Patrick Dooley, Patrick Roche, D. F. Carroll, Lawrence Fallon, Philip McMahon Michael Brennan Mrs. Nellie Collins, Mrs. Patrick Roche, Mrs. Maurice Dalton, Mrs. Mary O'Sullivan and the Misses Margaret Hegarty, Bridget Seaton, Nellie Barrow, Catherine Rice, Margaret Gilligan, Cecilia McDonough, Mary Sullivan, Julia Fallon, Josephine Riordan, Julia Driscoll, Mary Coveney, Margaret Coveney, Hannah Deneby, Mary Kerrigan, Margaret Devlin, Nellie Lynch, Catherine Lynch, Margaret King, Julia Sullivan, Winifred McCarthy and Mary Burke.

Members of the County Antrim Association last night held a reception in honor of Professor Robert H. Bowen, one of the leading composers and pianists of Ireland. The reception was given in Hibernian Building, Roxbury. The address of welcome was by President Daniel E. McDermott. The entertainment included music by the County Antrim orchestra and songs by James McGowan, Harry J. Beattie and Miss Fred Murphy.

CHARGE YOUTHS ROBBED MAN IN CHARLESTOWN

Five youths charged with assaulting and robbing Coleman Joyce, No. 47 Call street, Charlestown, pleaded not guilty today in Charlestown Court, and trial was set for Thursday. Bail was fixed at $1,000 in each case. The defendants are William McCreaven, 19, of Gray street; Thomas Corcoran, 18, of Wapping street; Timothy Sullivan, 18, of Park street, and Charles E. Wall, 19, of Park street, all of Charlestown, and Carmine Anonelli, 18, of East Cambridge.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS; ALSO A FEW GIRLS

THE BEST BOYISH bob known to discriminating Yankees is shown by Marion Davies in "Beverly of Graustark" at Loew's State this week. In making lovely boys out of blushing damsels, art is always supreme. Here's the evidence, with Antonio Moreno, solemn and demure, and Marion Davies, just the same and a little more.

EXCITING FILM AT OLYMPIA

Two stirring incidents furnish the thrills in "Her Second Chance," feature film now at the Olympia. One is an exciting horse race and the second is an indoor bathing party —both are done in the best movie manner.

Anna Q. Nilsson plays the leading feminine role with Huntley Gordon opposite; Charlie Murray veteran screen comic, supplies most of the humour. The story is an adaptation of the Mrs. Wilson Woodrow novel. Lambert Hillyer directed.

The racing scene, a reproduction of the famous Kentucky Derby, is done with striking realism and the galloping contestants all appear to be taking their tasks quite seriously.

As to the indoor aquatic exhibition, if not less realistic, it is an even more interesting spectacle. A party of revellers enter a ballroom clad in beach costumes; in the midst of the dance, the floor slides back revealing a sparkling pool, into which the guests plunge with the greatest glee—thereby reducing the temperature induced by the exertions of the Charleston.

Shorter subjects and a bill of vaudeville complete the program.

"THE RUNAWAY" AT FENWAY

"The Runaway," an adaptation of the Charles Neville Buck novel, "The Flight to the Hills," is the feature film for the week at the Fenway. In the cast are Clara Bow, Warner Baxter, William Powell and George Bancroft; William DeMille is responsible for the direction.

"The Runaway" is a romantic drama in which a fiery, imperious and sophisticated little movie actress finds herself the center of some strange incidents among the most primitive hill people of Kentucky. DeMille has filmed some fine scenes in the production, one of which shows the inner workings of a movie company on "location."

"The Gilded Highway," a J. Stuart Blackton production, is on the Scenic program. In the cast are: Dorothy Devore, John Harron and Sheldon Lewis. This story, based on William B. Maxwell's novel, "A Little More," is a stirring drama of flaming youth, the doubtful boon of sudden wealth and a romance of fluctuating fortunes.

SEEK $100,000 FOR RELIEF OF STARVING JEWS

A State labor conference at which $100,000 will be solicited for starving Jews abroad will be held next Sunday at the American House. Two noted Jewish speakers will attend in an effort to bring before local Jewish workers the need for funds to meet the $15,000,000 quota of the United Jewish campaign.

More than 200 representatives of branches of the Workmen's Circle, Independent Workmen's Circle, International Ladies' Garment Workers, delegates from lodges, synagogues and "landsmanns chaften" organizations are expected.

H. F. Naumberg, Jewish publicist, a recent arrival from Poland, and Baruch Zuckerman, national secretary of the People's Relief Committee, a constituent of the United Jewish campaign, will address the conference.

Naumberg staunchly supports the idea of land settlement for Jews, not only in Russia but in Poland and other countries, and his message to the meeting will contain first-hand information on the rehabilitation of economic life in Europe.

Zuckerman, one of the leaders of Poale Zion, will picture American relief work for European Jews.

DR. RUTH JAILED AS U. S. PROSECUTOR STUDIES CASE

Because the Federal authorities could not make up their minds on which of two charges to take action, the case of Dr. Erwin C. Ruth, former head of the New England narcotic bureau, was continued indefinitely in Federal court today.

Dr. Ruth is charged with being a fugitive from justice from Kansas City, Mo., where he is said to have violated the narcotic laws. Also there is said to be a complaint against him in Washington for violation of the Mann Act. The prisoner expressed willingness to go to Washington, but declared he would fight removal to Kansas City. Unable to make a decision, the Federal authorities remanded him to East Cambridge jail in $25,000 bonds.

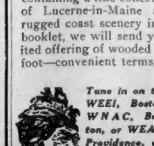
LUCERNE-IN-MAINE A VACATION HOME that will increase your health, comfort and happiness for life; that will grow rapidly in value with the years, and will provide a rich legacy for your heirs

Early purchasers of home-sites at Lucerne-in-Maine receive in addition to their building sites, other values which should far exceed the price paid for their building lots. Under the present limited offering at 6¼ cents per square foot, every purchaser receives for each lot comprising his home-site one proprietary share in the Lucerne-in-Maine Country Club, which will own or control miles of water front on Phillips Lake, the thousand acres of virgin forest forming the water shed of Clear Lake, the water works, the airplane landing field, all the park reservations, the grounds bordering on both banks of all the principal mountain streams, the golf course, tennis courts, archery ranges, shooting traps, club house, bathing pavilion, boat houses, et cetera. One-fourth of the purchase price of all lots sold by Lucerne-in-Maine Community Association is being deposited in trust in the Merrill Trust Company of Bangor, Maine (until a total of $750,000.00 is reached), subject only to the call of the Board of Governors of the Country Club, for improvements, and for the Club's working capital.

Furthermore, each original purchaser of a home-site, under the present limited offering, receives a perpetual membership in the Lucerne — in — Maine Country Club, without initiation fee or annual dues, which membership may be transferred or bequeathed only to a nominee approved by the Board of Governors.

This main building of the Club is now nearing completion, at a cost of $100,000.00. The contractors promise to have it ready for occupancy by the latter part of May.

We shall be pleased to mail you our illustrated booklet, containing a fine collection of duotone views (6x6 inches) of Lucerne-in-Maine and the mountains, lakes, and rugged coast scenery in the vicinity. In addition to the booklet, we will send you particulars of our present limited offering of wooded home-sites at 6¼ cents per square foot—convenient terms, if desired.



Tune in on the Lucerne-in-Maine Radio Concert, WEEI, Boston, every Saturday evening, and WNAC, Boston, or WEAN, Providence, every Wednesday evening.

OLD CHIEF NICOLAR who looks on with approval while his white brothers transform his ancestor's private hunting grounds into the nation's most inviting playground.

DEAREST ANNE:

I must tell you this week of a few of the things I have seen about town for the Spring bride. In fact they appeal very strongly to all feminine creatures, the housewife, the up-to-date girl as well as those who are considering a matrimonial venture.

Miss Louise Watts, one of the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Watts, snapped as she was out for a walk.

All the New Paris Details

—I found in the smart frocks shown to me at Hickson, Inc., 669 Boylston street. They are absolutely the last word in Paris style as adapted to the chic Boston woman. Every day they are receiving more models.

The bride can be properly gowned only, if she goes to Hickson's. If she feels she cannot afford original Paris models, copies can be made in Hickson's workrooms, and these, of course, cost just a fraction of the original model, and possess that finish, beauty and charm for which Hickson has always been famous.

The silhouette is varied. The new clothes as shown in this rendezvous of fashion are practical, unexaggerated, easy to wear and most flattering. Tailored day-time clothes are becoming softer and more feminine. Capes and cape coats are cool and Spring-y. Materials are most important, and you will be amazed at the skill with which they are handled at Hickson's.

The line tells the story—the neckline, waistline and hem-line. And the sleeves—these are very different from last year, big bishop sleeves are again gaining prominence; also the double sleeve, little cap sleeves and, once more, no sleeves at all.

Do run into Hickson, Inc., and see their fascinating models. They bring added glory to the fashionable girl or woman, as well as completely transforming this subject. It is such a satisfaction wearing a Hickson gown. Whatever the occasion you have the assurance of being clothed in the height of fashion combined with good taste.

The Fascination of the Orient —is revealed in the beautiful rugs I saw the other day at the Paine Furniture Company, 81 Arlington street. This large, bright and airy rug department is easily the finest in Boston. Every rug here is of the highest type, and the discerning salesmen help one a great deal in choosing and suggesting the right rug to go in the right place.

Chinese rugs have a soft richness that is very satisfying. The colorings are beautiful —to harmonize with your library or parlor—light and dark blue, tan, gold and mulberry. Paine's Chinese rugs come in a variety of designs and are hand made of finest Mongolian wools. They run from $25 up and a small one makes a wonderful wedding present.

Hashadan Persian rugs are lovely, too. You should see those I saw at Paine's, also their Hamadam Mossouls and Sarouks, which is the highest grade Persian rug made. They come in beautiful rich deep colorings and are soft, silky and lustrous.

Perhaps you prefer something plain on your floor; if so, you would do well to choose one from their extraordinary variety of American double face Chenille rugs. The plain colors are artistic with their darker borders, and just think, a large 9x12 is only $76.50! They wear wonderfully well, are good taste and make a splendid background for all types of furniture.

Paine's specialize in American Oriental rugs. Also Scotch art rugs which are splendid for bedrooms. Fine wool, now marvelously, 3x6 is $11.50. Sizes made to order to fit any room.

Every type of rug made you will find in this wonderful department. See Paine's rugs and you need go no further. You will be satisfied.

Simplify Spring Cleaning

—by taking your clothes to Filene's to have them cleansed. Just at this time of year I think we all feel like cleaning our clothes as well as our houses. Filene will do both for you by their wonderful "Renova" cleansing process. All you need do is phone Beach 3800 and they will send to collect your things and return them to you after they have been made fresh and new again.

Blankets (single) are 50 cents each and double ones $1.00. Makes them wear much longer; keeps the moths out of them, and saves them from shrinking. They come home soft and fluffy.

Heavy velvet portieres are $2.50 to $7.00 a pair. You can't get the dirt out any other way than by the Renova process at Filene's.

Puffs will soon have to be put away and Filene will clean them for $2.00 if cotton covered, and $2.50 if silk.

My fur-trimmed coat has just come home from being cleaned at Filene's and it was only $3.50 and so beautifully done. Plain dresses are $1.50 up, and men's suits $1.00, of course beside dresses are a little more.

Twenty-four-hour service on cleaning gloves at Filene's! Really it is a wonderful store. They make everything so easy for one—and there is no waste of time.

I highly recommend this splendid cleaning department of theirs and I know you will be more than pleased if you make use of it now if you have not already.

"Perfectly Lovely"

That just describes the all silk chiffon "Holeproof" hosiery I bought the other day at Talbot's, 396 Washington St. They are perfectly lovely. Made of the finer type pure silk chiffon they are sheer, subtle and smart.

Holeproof Hosiery

They are the best chiffon stocking I have ever worn and only $1.85 a pair. The finish is beautiful, the foot and leg is finely fitted, and they are good length.

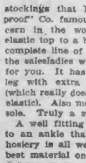
They are a harmony of hues—these lovely all silk chiffon stockings. They seem to be a blending of exquisite and perfect tones. The shades are gunmetal, mauve-taupe, shadow, atmosphere, blush, daybreak, moonlight, champagne, white as well as French nude. They match or contrast with every new Spring costume.

There is no more flattering stocking than these good length extra fine "Holeproof" hose at Talbot's. They slenderize and enhance the beauty of the most bewitching ankle. A dozen pair at least should be in every trousseau. Such remarkable values are hard to find.

Talbot's are ready now to fill all mail orders on these stockings—but you must place yours at once while their complete line of colors and sizes is still unbroken. Every pair is full fashioned and flawless, and the delight of every person who wears them, as well as those who see them on you. There are many types of chiffon hosiery but these are exceptionally fine and extremely low priced for such exquisite creations. Be sure and take advantage of this special number at Talbot's.

Elastic Rib Tops Stretch

Another "Holeproof" stocking is the famous silk one with the extra stretch mercerized lisle rib top. These are really splendid and Talbot is selling them for $1.50 a pair or 3 pairs at $4.35 for this week only. They come in all the latest colors and are wonderful for the woman who is bothered with most stockings binding around the knee.



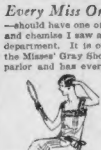
Talbot's have sold them for the last 2½ years, they were one of the stockings that helped to make this "Holeproof" Co. famous. They are the only concern in the world that has perfected the elastic top to a high degree. Talbot's have a complete line of sizes and colors, and any of the saleseladies will demonstrate this stocking for you. It has an 18-inch pure thread silk leg with extra stretch mercerized rib top (which really does seem to stretch just like an elastic). Also mercerized heel, toe and plated sole. Truly a splendid stocking.

A well fitting stocking lends more charm to an ankle than anything else. Holeproof hosiery is all well finished and made of the best material on specially fine looms. They outwear many a pair of other stockings and every day are becoming more and more popular. I almost never wear anything else nowadays, and I am sure it will be the same with you if you once put them on. Their merits are outstanding.

Remember, Talbot is the sole agent for "Holeproof Hosiery" in Boston and their stockings are well worth wearing.

Every Miss On Becoming a Mrs.

—should have one of the bridal sets of nightie and chemise I saw at Hovey's in their misses' department. It is on the third floor, back of the Misses' Gray Shop, and next to the beauty parlor and has everything in the dainty underthing line the miss or small woman could desire.



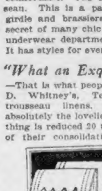
These bridal sets are exquisite! Wonderful quality crepe back satin or crepe de chine in pure white, lavishly trimmed with fine Valenciennes, Irish, net or val laces.

All with lovely ribbons around the waist and trimmed with dainty French flowers. They are fascinating. The chemises are step-in style, and only $7.95. The matching nightie is $10.50, and there are so many pretty styles to choose from. They look as if they cost a great deal more. Little tucks and fine pleats make them really most charming. Very bridey and bewitching. I do want you to see them. I know you will love them. This misses' department on the third floor of Hovey's is really a splendid innovation. It has everything for the girl of 14 to 20 made to fit her.

Little corselettes for the short, slight girl are in this 3rd floor Misses' department. Made of very dainty satin striped brocade without any boning and with elastic goring at the side for ease, they give her the slender though natural effect. Only $5.00. Soft, supple and comfortable. One should be in every trousseau. This is a particularly good model of girdle and brassiere combination. It is the secret of many chic clothes. Hovey's Misses' underwear department should not be missed. It has styles for every miss and small woman.

"What an Exquisite Trousseau!"

—That is what people will say if you go to T. D. Whitney's, Temple Place, for your trousseau linens. My dear, they have absolutely the loveliest things, and now everything is reduced 20 to 50 per cent. on account of their consolidation sale. Every single article is a genuine value.



Beautiful linen bed-sets of four pieces are a delight to sleep upon. Two sheets and two pillow slips, all most exquisitely embroidered either in the finest of Appenzell work or beautiful Monsel Monsel. At least one of these sets should be in every lovely trousseau and think of it, 25 per cent. off of them all!

Hand assembled bedspreads of Brittany lace are very feminine and dainty. Beautiful things and much less expensive than those with embroidery, but equally effective.

Hand-made Barabbas filet lace chair backs in very good-looking designs are now only 85 cents. Oblongs of hand made filet, 6x12, are 50 cents. These are nice as doilies on a dressing table or on the arms of a chair.

Madeira luncheon or tea napkins come in a variety of patterns at 6 for $2.25; and Madeira buffet sets of 3 pieces are only $1.50. Fine quality, lavishly embroidered. Awfully good shower present.

Florentine bridge sets of large square and 4 napkins, all done in lovely Italian embroidery, are only $5.00.

Linen huck towels are 1-3 off. Exquisitely fine with damask design and plaque for marking. Wonderful Irish linen.

Everything one could want of the finest as well as everyday linens are reduced at Whitney's. Be sure and see them.

For the New Home Maker

—Nothing is much nicer than a fresh, bright set of breakfast china from Jones, McDuffee & Stratton's, 33 Franklin Street. They have some of the most colorful and attractive new designs, and the one I sketched for you is the "Bedford." It is bright and Springy and all hand painted in brilliant orange, blue and green on a dainty soft ivory. It has a fluted shape dec a la Wedgwood, is made of English semi-porcelain and wears wonderfully.

This breakfast set for four of twenty-five pieces is $16.65. The coffee cups are very big and prettily shaped, and the coffee and teapots are low and copied after the Georgian style in silver. This is really a fascinating set, and will look equally well in an apartment or country house.

The young bride might like a larger set. Forty-five pieces especially for six is only $24.85 at Jones, McDuffee & Stratton's, in this same pattern, and consists of six dinner plates, six tea plates, six bread and butters, six sauce dishes, as well as six cups and saucers, one open vegetable dish, one meat platter, one sugar and one creamer and one bowl. Of course you can make up any size set you like as this is an open stock pattern.

China is becoming a more and more popular gift, and china such as Jones, McDuffee & Stratton has would delight the heart of any young couple now for their Summer home. I am sure you couldn't find elsewhere more attractive or better values than at this shop which is so widely known for its wonderful glass and china.

Affectionately,

Priscilla

HAL ROACH AND DUSKY STAR IN METRO FILMS

"Our Gang" Shifts Into New Movie Camp; Big Producers Gather in Hollywood

By LOUELLA A. PARSONS,
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

Los Angeles, April 12.—Just how important a part Farina, the dusky star of "Our Gang" comedies, plays in the accompanying fortunes of Hal Roach I do not know. But the fact remains that when Mr. Roach decided not to renew his contract with Pathe every producer in the business made Mr. Roach an offer to bring Farina and his playmates into their particular camp.

Now word comes that within a short time Hal Roach's comedies will be released through Metro-Goldwyn, and Farina, who was eighteen months old when he first appeared on the screen, will probably have a few more kinks in his Julius Elfinger diagrams to complete the occasion.

Hal Roach is the energetic young man who first brought Harold Lloyd into fame as his manager. The Roach-Lloyd combination ceased when Harold signed with Famous Players-Lasky, and Mr. Roach continued making comedies for Pathe with the inimitable Farina, Mickey and the rest of the youngsters, including the plump young man who looks as if his diet consisted of chocolates and pastry.

The Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles looks like the Astor Hotel in New York during the early days when the "think" men gathered to plan their campaigns over strong coffee and much serious table covers. They are all here, Adolph Zukor, Carl Laemmle, Winfield Sheehan, Richard Rowland, William Fox, F. A. Powers, Sam Katz, S. L. Rothapfel and scores of lesser lights. New York, it seems, has changed places temporarily with Los Angeles, for when we read accounts of the appearance in New York of Marion Davies, Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson and the rest of the world-famous stars at the end that theatre row is deserted, most of the men who finance the film bank roll have traveled West for a conference with their studio heads.

Naturally the fact that Zukor, Rowland and Katz have been closeted together since they left West on the same train, is creating much talk. The old rumor of the amalgamation between Famous Players-Lasky and Associated First National is being revived. I hate to drag, but seven months ago I printed a story that Famous would eventually take over all of Associated First National theatres and what a denial swept the country. But that is still my story and I shall stick to it.

Palm Springs continues to be the Mecca for tired film folk. Last week Matt Moore and Rockcliffe Fellowes journeyed there for a short rest between pictures. And take it from one who knows they will rest there whether they want to or not. Tom Mix and company are still on location there. One of the cowpunchers to whom I spoke when I heard that that the little town was being visited by all the film folk, said:

"We have a famous visitor here now."

I said: "Who, Tom Mix?"

"Naw," he said in high disgust. "Tony, Mix's horse!"

Constance Talmadge and the new husband, Captain McIntosh, are living at Norma's house while Norma is in New York. Constance has been giving a series of small dinner parties to introduce the bridegroom to Hollywood society, and the consensus of opinion seems to be that he is a regular person. Connie who refuses to take anything seriously, is not going to let marrying interfere with her sense of humor. She continues to believe that the greatest thing in the world is to be able to laugh, and personally I think it's a pretty good philosophy.

HARVARD GRAD WEDS FORMER MRS. NAST

New York, April 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles Coudert Nast, who divorced Condé Nast, wealthy publisher of society magazines, and J. Victor Onativia, prominent Wall Street broker, are on their honeymoon today, following a quaint wedding in the Municipal Building. Mrs. Onativia, a daughter of the late Charles R. Coudert, noted international lawyer, divorced Nast in Paris last Summer. They had been living apart several years. When their daughter, Natica Nast, was introduced to society in 1923, entertainments for her were given separately by her parents. Mr. Onativia graduated from Harvard in 1908. He is a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

MUSICAL COMEDY BY JAMAICA PLAIN K. C.

Jamaica Plain Council No. 130, K. of C., will present its annual musical comedy, "Here Comes the Bride," on Monday and Tuesday evenings, April 12th and 13th, and a special matinee Sunday afternoon, April 11th, for the children, in St. Thomas' Hall, Woodman street, Jamaica Plain.

The principal parts are to be taken by the Misses Alice Lynch, Agnes Ferris, Rita Curley, Evelyn Donavon, Helen Arenson, Anna McGaffee, and Mr. W. Frank Connell, Thos. Fougher, Joe Fougher, Eddie Kelley, Mike Griffin and Frank Pritchard.

CANADIAN R. R. CHIEF TO BE GUEST IN HUB

Sir Henry Worth Thornton, one of the best-known figures in Canada and president of the Canadian National Railways, will address the members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce next Friday at 12:30 p. m. Sir Henry is a native of the United States and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1904, was connected for some time with the Pennsylvania Railroad, was decorated and knighted for putting the Great Eastern Railway of England on a sound basis, and returned to Canada in 1923.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Binneys of Yachting Fame to Put in Summer at Newport Home

MRS. JOHN W. GEARY, JR. helped put over the Chinese Lantern Festival for the Infants' Hospital.

COLORS OF THE BINNEY family will float aloft this Summer on two smart yachts, the "Queen Mab," flying the pennant of Horace Binney the elder, and the "Iseult," a "Q" boat, that of Horace Binney, Jr.

YOUNG MR. BINNEY (he's Harvard '28) has raced and cruised both in Maine and Massachusetts waters, and his new craft will figure much in small boat racing. He and his "Q" also are familiar figures in and about Narragansett Bay.

THE ELDER BINNEYS, prominent figures in Boston's ultra set, will be householders this Summer in Newport, where they have a pleasant establishment not occupied by them for a season or so. Last year they were abroad.

OWNERSHIP OF the speedy "Queen Mab," former Eastern Yacht Club flagship, having passed to Mr. Binney from Commodore Nathaniel Farwell Ayer, his flag of rank will fly from a brand new and handsome schooner now fast approaching completion on the Adriatic.

HER NAME IS, I believe, "Buccaneer" and accounts afloating across the Atlantic say she boasts both speed and looks as handsome a racing schooner as the Eastern's Commodore desires, and therefore fit successor to the doughty "Queen Mab" for so many years a cup winner.

SHE'LL ARRIVE on this side in due time, probably within two months, in season for the opening gun of the yachting season. Yachtsmen hereabouts all declare the coming Summer promises to go down in history as a memorable season.

ANOTHER foreign-built boat having an Eastern Yacht Club skipper and sagerly awaited in local waters is George L. Batchelder's new purchase. Mr. Batchelder came home on the steamship Paris last Wednesday, after a hurried Inspection trip aboard to see the craft.

THE PARIS ALSO brought in Lindsley Loring of Sunrise Farm, Westwood, and his young daughter, Miss Mary M. Loring, Mr. and Mrs. David Jacobus of Cambridge returned on the Paris after their honeymoon abroad.

SHE ALSO BROUGHT Mr. and Mrs. F. W. C. Foster and the Foster young hopefuls, Miss Betty Foster, Master Samuel Foster and Master Richard Foster. On her outward trip, the Paris also has a notable list.

NOW STEAMING for France she carries Mr. and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Southboro, who go over on a short trip. Mrs. Corbiere is the noted tennis player whose name shines forth whenever experts of the racquet meet in the courts.

MRS. FRANK H. MONKS is a passenger aboard the Paris, also Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Little of Concord, who are taking a car for pleasant motor journeys here and there on famous Continental routes.

FRANK BREWER BEMIS, who has a lovely Beverly Farms home, quaintly Old English, goes over for a brief stay, and Edmund M. Parker, of Cambridge has sailed with his daughter, Mrs. W. D. Potter.

MODELTOWN IS OFF on its last lap to a brilliant finish, with Horticultural Hall and the Village It houses drawing record throngs. Truly New England in its atmosphere, its downstairs offshoot, the Italian garden, provides a contrasting exotic touch.

ITALIAN FURNITURE and furnishings, softly gleaming candles, pottery, flaunting colors and Neapolitan music beguile to a quiet rendezvous for tea and dine, those who've done the Modeltown rounds of shops and exhibits.

TOMORROW EVENING at the Hotel Copley Plaza, there's still another Modeltown offshoot on the cards, a dinner with Prof. Manley O. Hudson doing the honors and the Hon. Norman H. Davis to speak of recent momentous affairs at Geneva.

YOUNG MARRIED people are of the sponsors — namely Mrs. Daniel Comstock (Joan Barton), Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow (Elinor Condit), Mrs. John MacDuffie, 3d (Evelyn Walker), Mrs. John Parris and Mrs. John T. J. Clunie (Susette Courtney).

BACK PLAN TO AID DEPENDENT CHILDREN

Haverhill Patriot Dames See Need of National Legislation in Work

The Haverhill branch of the Patriot Dames of the United States has indorsed House bill 7,569, which provides Federal aid for dependent children in the District of Columbia. The Haverhill members, like those of the Boston branch, believe the measure should be made a national law.

Mrs. Felker

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Felker, president of the Haverhill branch, with an experience of 25 years in social welfare work, said today:

"For years I have seen the need for this kind of legislation owing to the fact that our American civilization has developed from a state of purely provincial simplicity to one of utmost complexity. This condition is due to the tremendous increase of foreign-born peoples who are ignorant of the true meaning and purpose of American institutions and American citizenship.

"Every day right here in our Commonwealth, social workers and others have constantly brought to their attention many pathetic cases which demonstrate the crying need for legislation of this character, more especially as Massachusetts has become such a highly-industrialized community.

"The Haverhill branch of Patriot Dames is moving with other units of the organization to impress upon our United States Senators from this State that there is substantial public sentiment in favor of this legislation."

MISSIONARY MEETING AT ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

There will be a missionary meeting in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Eva D. Corey will preside. Miss Grace Parker of the Women's Auxiliary will speak on "Youth." The meeting is under the auspices of the Church Service League.

The Most Wonderful Book in the World

MORE than nine million copies of the Bible were sold or otherwise distributed last year all over the world.

Would you not love to have companion volumes which will help you discover the treasures in this wonderful Book?

explained the Bible's practical application to daily life; how it describes the life hereafter; what the Bible parables mean to us when spiritually interpreted.

The following are the best introductory books to the Revelations of SWEDENBORG. They are in large print, bound in buckram, and contain from 422 to 650 pages.

TITLES		PRICE
HEAVEN AND HELL	from things heard and seen	$1.25
Angelic Wisdom Concerning DIVINE PROVIDENCE		1.00
MARRIAGE LOVE		2.00
Price of all three at one time, including postage		3.00

Who Was Swedenborg?

EMANUEL SWEDENBORG, the son of a bishop, was the great Swedish scientist, philosopher and theologian whose vast range caused Emerson to term him the mastodon of scholars and who recently was named by Dr. Perkes Cadman the universal genius.

Pressing on from his great discoveries in mechanics, geology, hydraulics, mathematics, chemistry, astronomy and biology —not to mention music, colors and drawing—SWEDENBORG continued his search for the soul. How his spiritual senses were opened, and how he served the Lord with his exposition of the Bible may be read in the above named uplifting, tearful books.

What do Your Shoes Say About You?

Black Shoes After Six O'Clock

CURFEW rings for light colored shoes at sundown. Men who realize their shoes are the foundation of proper dress, invariably wear black shoes in the evening.

Black shoes are made in every wanted style, in all leathers ranging from the lightest vici kid to husky Scotch grain. They do not spot nor stain. Responding splendidly to shoe polish they can quickly be brought to the lustre of newness by a good shine.

Buy a pair of black shoes to wear after dinner; remember you are only as well dressed as your shoes. For the best styles, quality and prices note the shoe advertisements in the Boston American and the Daily Advertiser.

Martha Lee's Talks to Housewives

BEST IN BUYS AT THE FOOD COUNTERS

You don't have to be an epicure to appreciate the flavor of French artichokes—nor a mcuid of fashion and gloss of form to know how to prepare, serve and eat them—now I write me for full particulars and recipes! I do know that many people refrain from ordering this delicious vegetable (which right now is one of the best buys in the spring foods) because they do not know just how to engineer the trip from plate to mouth. Artichokes are very plentiful, and from 5 to 10c each. Some of the smaller ones are as low as 2c a dozen.

White potatoes are soaring again, the average retail price being $1 for 15 pounds. Last year old potatoes were 25c for 15 lbs. New ones are 12½ to 15c a lb. No, they are not gold plated.

Asparagus is quite plentiful, 47c to 75c a bunch. And no one need be a spring tonic with crisp, fresh spinach at 3 lbs. for 25c. We can enjoy a tomato salad with a clear conscience, with Southern tomatoes at 25c a lb. But the lettuce to go with them is apt to be not so good—and quite high.

And I am going to hunt out some luscious recipes I've been holding back because they are a bit extravagant on eggs. Eggs are extremely low—with fresh western at 33-37 and nearby 40 to 45c. By the way, the head of one of the largest creameries in this country tells me that the snow white "Fresh Western" eggs are in reality fresh nearest directed from the higher-priced lot on account of their white shell? You know white eggs are not popular in Beantown, whereas a New Yorker scorns our big brown favorites.

Lovers of shad will welcome its appearance on the fish counters at 28 to 30c, with shad roe 50 to 65c a pound. I can't forgive this fish its combination of perfectly matchless flavor and unsurpassed equipment of bones. Those who are blessed with more patience than I in bone hunting tell me that every morsel is worth all the time necessary to separate it from its framework.

RHUBARB AND RAISIN TART PIE SHOULD BE IN EVERY HOME THIS WEEK

FIRST I CUT UP 2 CUPS OF THIS RHUBARB
I MIX WITH IT 2 CUPS OF SEEDLESS RAISINS
THEN I ADD THE JUICE OF THIS ORANGE AND THE GRATED RIND
AND MIX ALL THOROUGHLY TOGETHER
I FILL MY PIE AND BAKE 35 MINUTES
SEEDLESS SUN-MAID RAISINS

RAISIN IS KING THIS WEEK; AND RAISIN PIE

This week Raisin is King all over the World. Raisin week in America has become a real institution, and an excellent time to discover new recipes to compete with the older favorites. Our pictures today illustrate the making of the superlatively good

RHUBARB AND RAISIN TART PIE
2 cups rhubarb.
1 cup seedless raisins.
2 tbsps. flour.
1 cup sugar.
Juice of one orange.
1 teaspoon grated orange rind.
Cut rhubarb in small pieces and mix with raisins. Mix flour and sugar. Add orange juice and rind, and the rhubarb and raisin mixture. Fill a pastry lined pie pan with the mixture, and lay strips of pastry on the top, lattice fashion. Put into a hot oven. After ten minutes reduce the heat, and bake 20 to 25 minutes longer. (A cup of broken walnut meats added to the rhubarb and raisin mixture are pleasing.)

I've laid in a big supply of illustrated recipe books giving the raisin recipes of four world famous cooks. Wouldn't you like a copy? I've often paid $2 for a less reliable book—and these of course are free for the asking. Full particulars too about the prizes offered each month (they total $2,400) for raisin recipes.

Good Food Values in and Around Boston

A BOX OF JOY

FOR YOUR BOY or girl, away at school will be more welcome than you know. Healthful fruits, sandwich fillings, jellies—everything to delight the youngster tired of school cookery. Beautifully packed. Safely delivered. Lovely filled baskets for the convalescent, too. And an appreciated gift for the bachelor girl or traveler. Leave your order with the grocer who considers it a personal trust. Sent to any part of the country.

WILD BRAMBLES lend luscious flavor to an English jelly that's just beyond words on buttered toast, or the afternoon-tea muffins. Try it when the hum drum grape-apple-currant varieties pall. You'll go back for more.

I'VE BEEN HEARING splendid reports of a certain oil I recommended. Gives prompt relief for bronchitis and other throat and nose troubles. Wonderful for burns—prevents blisters. Relieves tired feet, lame muscles and rheumatism. 25c.

IF YOU ARE SHY on elbow grease, you'll be delighted with a new liquid-wax stove polish. Fireproof. No dust or dirt or disagreeable odor. Dries quickly to jet black lustre finish.

"HASN'T SCRATCHED YET" can be truly said of a luminous metal polish. No acids to injure tender hands. Nothing to harm the finest metal. Will not harden in the can. You won't have to "shine 'em up" so often if you use this cream.

CHIMNEY FIRES ARE FREQUENT these Spring-rubbish-burning days. Often destroy entire homes. 50c pkg. of certain chimney cleaner quickly extinguishes worst fire of this kind. Part of the regular equipment of many Fire Depts. Splendid for removing soot from your chimneys, too. Makes stoves burn better. Saves fuel.

WHISPER TO FATHER that all through this month he can buy a combination canned heat outfit (canned alcohol, stove, covered saucepan) and the "world's best safety razor," all complete for 75c. Wonderful for camps and cottages. Or for any home where the morning hot water supply isn't dependable.

YOU'LL NEVER GO BACK to the old-fashioned hot water bottle once you've used an electric heating pad. 3 heats. Soft, cozy covering. Absolutely safe. And oh so comforting. Reduced in price for a short time. An investment in quick relief for most all aches and pains.

DON'T YOU WISH your gas range had a big, smooth top like coal stoves? With room to cook a lot of things all at one time? And to keep things hot? Why not get a liberal allowance for your present gas stove towards the latest ones with the smooth top. One gas burner heats entire surface. Think of the economy. AND convenience!

BEST RECIPE FOR STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

Strawberries are plentiful and within reach of the average budget right now, so I'm going on record with what I think is a world-beating recipe for

OLD-FASHIONED STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

Sift together 2 cups pastry or cake flour, 4 tsps. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, and 1 tbsp. sugar. Cut in 1-3 cup of butter with a knife, making sure it is in small bits. Add slowly ⅔ cup of cold milk. On a floured board, handling the dough as little as possible, divide it into two parts. Roll one-half out, very lightly, and place in buttered layer cake pan. Repeat with the other half. Bake 15 minutes in a piping hot oven. Slit each half with a very sharp knife, while warm, and spread liberally with butter. Sweeten your strawberries to taste, and set them in an agate saucepan on the back of the range to get a little warm. Crush them with a fork and put them between the layers. Cover the top with ¾ cup of thick cream beaten and sweetened with 1-3 cup powdered sugar and ½ tsp. vanilla.

The secret of the tenderness of this shortcake is handling the dough just as little as possible, and having the oven just right. A cool oven means a tough shortcake.

Pineapple Cheese Salad

½ lb. American loaf cheese rubbed through grater.
Mayonnaise dressing.
1 tsp. cream.
Sliced pineapple.
Paprika.
Crisp lettuce.

Cream together the cheese, cream and 1 tsp. of mayonnaise. Roll into balls, and place one in the center of each slice of pineapple on bed of crisp lettuce. Sprinkle with paprika. Mask with mayonnaise dressing diluted one part with whipped cream and dust paprika over the top.

FROZEN DAINTIES WITH ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

Warm weather's just around the corner (I honestly believe) and we'll soon be thinking about crispy cool foods. Write early to avoid the rush if you'd like a book of recipes and directions for preparing soups, salads, cocktails, sherbets, frozen custards, mousses, besides endless regular ice creams, especially suitable for freezing in the handy trays of an electric refrigerator.

Every fortunate owner of an electric ice chest will want a copy, I know—and those of you who are just beginning to think of making the investment will like to know of a few of the many frozen delicacies you can prepare so quickly and conveniently in one of these wonder-workers.

'MET' ORGANIST

Radio artists little realize how vast their audiences might be, for on last Monday evening at 11:30 when Arthur Martel played his usual request program on the organ at the Metropolitan Theatre broadcast through Station WNAC, the Shepard Stores, he certainly did not suspect that officers and the crew of an American freighter off the coast of Brazil were enjoying his music. The crew sent their applause to Martel by code. (Photo by F. A. George.)

TO BROADCAST BASEBALL GAME

Through the courtesy of Bob Quinn, owner of the Red Sox, radio fans throughout New England will hear a play by play report of the opening game of the American League season between the Red Sox and the New York Yankees on Tuesday afternoon starting at 2:45 o'clock, broadcast through Station WNAC. The Shepard stores.

This opening game will be reported by a capable sports announcer right from the press stand at Fenway Park, and each play will be given as it is made. Quinn has gathered together a team which is admittedly rejuvenated, and under the leadership of Fohl, with the two new players Haney and Rigney. It looks like a big season.

MAINE REUNION WBZ FEATURE

The State of Maine reunion, featuring all all Maine program will be the piece de resistance from WBZ tonight. This program that will go on the air at 8:30 p. m. will be broadcast direct from Symphony Hall and will consist of an elaborate entertainment, in which musicians of national repute, and speakers of country-wide prominence will take part.

Governor Ralph Brewster will bring "Greetings from the Folks Back Home," and Governor Alvan T. Fuller will pay homage to the State of the whispering pines with a short address. Response to Governor Brewster's address will be made by Malcolm E. Nichols, Mayor of Boston, and Hon. John C. Hull, speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

The musical part of the program will be opened with selections by the First Corps Cadets band under the direction of Colonel John H. Fielding. This organization has won an enviable record for the splendid type of music they offer.

I do my own wash

—yet my hands stay soft, white

I used to hate Monday, for my week's wash was always very heavy. But washday is now so easy for me.

I just use Rinso. It's granulated and dissolves in a jiffy—forming wonderfully thick, lasting suds.

I soak the whole wash in these suds for about two hours—then rinse. The dirt soaks right out and everything becomes spotless without a bit of hard rubbing. And oh, so much whiter than ever before. Sterilized, too!

And with Rinso my hands never get red and parboiled any more. They stay white and soft.

Just ask your grocer for

Rinso

The granulated soap that soaks clothes whiter—no scrubbing

Milk

is Essential to Health

"Milk for Health" to the rule of right living

EVERYONE'S body is constantly wearing out and being renewed. This constant renewal is essential to good health.

Milk is the best food for rebuilding. It contains the elements needed to renew nerves, tissues, teeth and bones. It rebuilds more quickly than most other foods because it's so easily used by the body.

Keep your family feeling well—drink at least two glasses a day and let each child have four glasses.

FULLER VETOES WAR BONUS FOR VET GUARDIAN

Governor Fuller today vetoed a bill under which Miss Mary Lehan of Boston would have been paid the $100 State bonus for war veterans entrusted to her ward, Edward H. Lehan, who died in the service.

Miss Lehan raised and supported the boy since infancy, but never legally adopted him, and for this reason the Attorney-General declared the bill unconstitutional.

BAY STATE LOSES FIGHT FOR NEW YORK LAND

Massachusetts lost in the Supreme Court at Washington today its suit against the State of New York for property located in Rochester. Massachusetts contended that under their original grants from the British [illegible] and [illegible] of its present boundary. The master appointed by the supreme Court found that Massachusetts, under its grant, did not retain sovereignty.

Admiral Andrews Sees Ironsides Fund Success

MANAGING EDITOR, Boston Evening American:

Indications are that the $500,000 fund for the restoration of the Frigate CONSTITUTION will be approximately one-half completed by June 1, and it occurs that this may be a good time to tell you of the success which has marked our efforts ever since the day when nearly three months ago, I made a direct appeal to the Boston Evening American to come to our assistance.

Admiral Andrews.

The persistent, powerful and intelligent publicity given to this patriotic cause by your great newspaper opened the public schools of Boston to the Fund, and—more important, it seems to me—made it possible for us to reach the school children of Boston with the history of a great American ship and the story of our navy.

The splendid spirit shown by the Boston Evening American gave new life to a campaign that was halted by opposition of school authorities generally. Success in Boston inspired our people to wage a successful campaign in New York, Philadelphia and Washington. We are still a considerable distance from the goal, but that we shall reach it ultimately there is no longer the shadow of a doubt and I am sure I do not exaggerate the importance of well directed publicity when I say the result locally will be due in no small measure to the assistance we received in the hour of our greatest need from the newspaper of which you are in charge.

In the name of the committee and, I hope I may add, on behalf of the children of Boston, I desire to thank and at the same time congratulate you and the Boston Evening American.

Very truly yours,
Philip Andrews.
PHILIP ANDREWS
Rear Admiral USN.

VET, 94, TO SUE FOR $500,000

Asbury Park, N. J., April 12 (I.N.S.)—A civil action for $500,000 will be started by Dr. Edwin Pye Turner Osbaldeston, 94-year-old physician and soldier of fortune, against Deputy Sheriff S. Foster Black, 81, and other officials of Binghamton, N. Y., who caused the aged doctor's arrest March 26 on charges of horse stealing and jail breaking made against him in 1881.

This was revealed today by his attorney, Charles E. Cook, who said that District Attorney U. C. Lyon of Broome County, N. Y., in a telephone conversation with him last Friday had offered to quash the two indictments if Dr. Osbaldeston would release him and the other New York authorities renew their for his arrest, from civil liability.

The great Three-Oven Glenwood with 2 oven heat controls

IN this new model the helpfulness and efficiency of the Glenwood gas range is carried to its highest point. Here—in a four-foot width—are all the oven capacity and cooking space that the largest coal range ever had. But see how many conveniences have been added for quicker, easier cooking.

Each of the big baking ovens has its own Glenwood Robertshaw Oven Heat Control. Thus you can cook a roast in one at 550 degrees, bake bread in the other at 350 degrees at the same time, leave the kitchen for an hour, and have both done exactly right when you come back.

Equipped with Glenwood Robertshaw Heat Control

Then, too, this range has a gas broiler, six burners in the cooking top, and a warming closet where you can keep things hot when meals are delayed. The finish, inside and out, is of porcelain enamel in a soft, gleaming gray that wipes clean at the touch of a damp cloth.

WORLD COURT ISSUE IN SENATE FIGHT

Wartime Alien Wins Point in Fight for Citizenship

Queen Victoria was made very happy by the alliance of her son, Bertie, and Alexandra of Denmark. This old picture shows Alexandra as the Princess of Wales, most beautiful woman in the royal families of Europe

THE remarkable spectacle of a Queen fighting to prevent her own son accepting a throne is presented in today's instalment of "The Letters of Queen Victoria," which the Boston Evening American is publishing daily with th approbation of King George of England.

A revolution in Greece having deposed King Otho, Prince Alfred, Victoria's second son, now eighteen, and serving in the British navy, has been elected to the throne.

The Queen's first duty is to the British throne. The Prince of Wales might have no children, might die. True, she has four sons, but she cannot spare even one for a foreign throne.

"Bertie" Accepted

REINHARDTSBRUNN (a picturesque castle near Gotha), 9th Sept.—Saw Lord Russell (Foreign Secretary) and talked of Bertie's marriage, of France, Germany, and the Schleswig-Holstein question. We discussed the importance of Bertie's marriage being in no sense considered a political one. Had a telegram from Bertie that he "had proposed and been accepted this day" and asking "for my consent and blessing. So it is settled."

The King of the Belgians to Queen Victoria

LAEKEN, 11th September, 1862.

MY BELOVED VICTORIA,—I believe that Bertie writes every moment to you, and I therefore limit myself to the chief features of our affairs. These features strike me as very favorable; the match is really quite a love match; Bertie is extremely happy and in admiration of his very lovely bride. All the arguments that one forced him to marry a young lady he had never seen, fall most completely to the ground; and this is important, particularly for England, where it

U. S. COURT UPHOLDS APPEAL

Harvard Grad, Admitted to the Bar, Claimed Exemption From Draft Law

Jacob J. Tutun, of Chelsea, Harvard graduate, who carried his fight for United States citizenship to the Supreme Court, won one round in his protracted battle today.

The Supreme Court ruled that aliens denied citizenship by Federal district courts have the right to appeal.

Tutun, a graduate of Harvard Law School was denied citizenship by U. S. Massachusetts Federal district court because in 1918 he took oath declarant alien he had claimed exemption from military service.

Although a lawyer, Tutun could not practice because he was not a citizen.

Again on February 7 1924, Tutun filed application for admission to citizenship and was rejected. He appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

When the case came up Septem ber 4 1925 Assistant Federal Attorney George R. Farnum argued the point that the Court had no jurisdiction to review the findings of the Naturalization Court. The case then went directly to Supreme court.

Tutun was born in Rovno, Russia, emigrated to the United States, landed in Boston October 24 1914.

SOVIET TO SEEK U. S. ACCORD

London, April 12 (I.N.S.).—Soviet Russia is about to make another effort to open negotiations with the United States with a view to the resumption of diplomatic relations, according to a Reval dispatch to the Gothenburg Handelstidning.

The Russian Minister to Sweden, M. Oswald, the dispatch said, had been entrusted with the handling of the matter. It is understood that a special commissar will be sent to Washington to negotiate the liquidation of old Russian debts if the United States responds favorably to Soviet overtures.

MAN DYING AFTER FALL IN ACID VAT

Lawrence, April 12.—Topping into a vat of pulp and acid, Angelo Ardi, forty, of No. 27 Middle street, a helper employed at the Champion International Paper Company, was secured from head to foot today and is unconscious at the Lawrence General Hospital. Arrizi was alone in the vat room at the time of the accident. His cries brought other workers who pulled him from the vat and summoned an ambulance. He lapsed into unconsciousness after being taken from the vat and physicians hold out little hope for his recovery.

In Death Case

After a week in jail, Marie di Carlo, partner of Gennaro Accardo, 35, of Oneida street, found shot to death in their restaurant in Broadway, South End, was released today. She had been held as a material witness. The release on her personal $500 bond was arranged by John McLaughlin of William R. Scharton's office.

FRANCE ABLE TO PAY DEBT, SAYS GEN. PEABODY

Declaring that French tax collectors are lax, Gen. Francis A. Peabody, former president of the Boston Bar Association, arrived home with his wife on the Cunarder Samaria today.

General Peabody, who had visited with Mrs. Peabody Mediterranean ports, Paris and London, said France could pay her debt to this country if the tax collectors were efficient. He added that the prohibition law in this country is a failure.

Other local notables who returned on the Samaria were Frank R. Shepard of Lexington, vice-president of the General Baking Company who was accompanied by Mrs. Shepard, and Mr and Mrs. Paul Ring of Pond street, Jamaica Plain. Mr. Shepard, who has been on an eleven weeks' cruise of the Mediterranean, said he knew none of the details of the proposed merger of the General Baking Company with the Ward Baking Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Ring have been on a honeymoon trip that took them around the world. They have been married six months.

Three young women passengers from Liverpool were married on their arrival by Parson "Jimmie" Burns, the Cunard line famous "Dock Parson." Miss Emily Jones was married to Fred Dawson, Miss Beatrice Bryden to Robert B. Reid and Gertrude McCormack to James Bryden, a brother of Elizabeth.

WON MEDAL BUT HE IS SLIGHTED

An investigation was being planned today to determine why the name of John MacKenzie of South Hadley Falls was omitted from a tablet bearing the names of congressional medal winners of Massachusetts, recently erected at the State House here.

MacKenzie was signally honored for his heroic services in controlling a dumb bomb torn loose at sea during the World War.

INQUIRY STARTED.

The Western Massachusetts Council of Posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars took notice of the omission at a meeting in the rooms of George Clark Post. Hopkins, and laid plans for an investigation. MacKenzie, a member of Clark Post

While a member of the crew of the United States gunboat Memphis MacKenzie raked his life overboard the bomb which had been torn loose during a heavy sea. The safety pin of the bomb became released, endangering the lives of the crew.

BURIED DEATH.

MacKenzie flung himself upon the cylinder and after being torn away three times by the sea, finally controlled the bomb. He was almost crushed.

The tablet erected at the State House contains the names of all the winners of the congressional medal.

MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN STATE STREET BUILDING

The body of an unidentified man clad in overalls and with a brass check over the left eye, was found today on the third floor of the building at No. 246 State street by Anthony Iato of No. 865 Freeport, Dorchester, who called the police. The body was removed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital. The man was about 45 years old, having been 5 feet tall, 167 pounds in weight, forty-five years old, wearing blue overalls, khaki shirt, black coat with white pencil stripe, and a gray hat. As the man had been seen previously in the building it is thought he may have been a member of the Marine, Oilers and Watertenders Union, whose hall is located at that address. The body was taken to the Northern Mortuary.

"L" PLACES CONTRACT FOR 100 STEEL CAR BODIES

The Boston Elevated Railway Co. has placed an order for 100 steel elevated car bodies. The bodies will be built in New England, the Lafayette Car Co. receiving a contract for 75 and the Wason Car Co. of Springfield, 25. Trucks of old cars will be used with the new bodies.

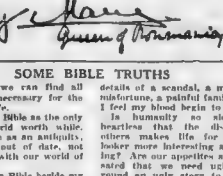
SOME BIBLE TRUTHS

IN THE Bible we can find all the elements necessary for the moral rules of life.

Some study the Bible as the only Book in the world worth while. Some put it aside as an antiquity, unpractical and out of date, not to be reconciled with our world of today.

I always have a Bible beside my bed and, although it is not the only Book I study, like the Puritans of old, when troubled, I say a short prayer, open the Bible just anywhere, and read. Seldom have I been disappointed. Nearly always do I find some advice, some warning, some parable that helps my daily life.

"Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone." "Much shall be forgiven, for much has she loved." "Take first the beam from thine own eye before plucking the straw from thy brother's." "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." "Judge not that ye be not judged."



And many, many others. But I want to stop a moment at this last: "Judge not that ye be not judged."

How temptingly easy it is to judge and to criticise! And if we cannot hit in any other way, we do so quite often through our witticisms. Little do we realize what harm we do, how much we hurt, how savage, how unjust our easy judgments—and our laughs.

Each time I read the abominable details of a scandal, a murder, a misfortune, a painful family event, I feel my blood begin to boil.

Is humanity so sickeningly heartless that the distress of others makes life for the onlooker more interesting and exciting? Are our appetites already so sated that we need ugly words round an ugly story to make it more palatable?

This thought seems ghoulish—fills me always with profound sadness, tinged with sickening disgust.

This leap upon the downfallen seems like the rush of wild dogs upon a carcass, like ravens on a dunghill. Cruelty, vulgarity—each idle tongue belie-ing it has the right to judge, to laugh, to joke or be insulting at the expense of the heart's blood of others.

What if the tables were turned? What if one of the gaping crowd were suddenly set upon the pillory and judged in his own turn? Whose would be the right to cast the first stone?

They have called me too lenient, too tepid in my resentments. But do not think I have not felt the misjudgments and misunderstandings that have been hurled against me! I know what it is to have my best intentions misconstrued, my hopes scoffed at, my holiest beliefs derided. I know what it means to have to remain dumb whilst infamous tales are told about me. What else can I do but take refuge in my old Bible truths, my childhood lessons: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

$1,000,000 ANONYMOUSLY GIVEN YALE FOR MUSEUM

New Haven, Ct., April 12 (A.P.).—A million dollar art museum is to be erected at Yale University to house the rare and valuable collections now in possession of the institution. The structure is to be provided by a gift of $1,000,000 by two anonymous donors.

The present quarters devoted to the school of fine arts crowded and many of the collections in storage the university looks upon the gift as a timely one. It will make possible public enjoyment of the rare art possessions. These include such rare groups as the Jarvis collection, the finest group of Italian primitives in American, the Trumbull collection of the work of early American artists and the Mason collection of Renaissance bronzes.

The new museum will be at Chapel and High streets and plans call for a large arch spanning High street and connecting the present School of Fine Arts and the new building.

Illinois Voters Are to Express Opinion on League Stand Taken by Sen. McKinley

Chicago, April 12 (A.P.).—The first opportunity for a constituency to express its feeling toward a Senator's vote for a World Court adherence will be offered in the Illinois primary tomorrow.

In addition, another question of great national import, probably will be involved to some extent while considerable local interest will be centered in scrambled and fantastical factional struggles.

The World Court issue revolved around the fight for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, with Senator William B. McKinley defending his World Court vote on the basis of party regularity and support of President Coolidge.

His opponent, Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, made this point his chief campaign issue, virtually defying a referendum on Senator McKinley's vote.

Democratic battle in the race ground of Republican congressional campaigning not unable to the force that has developed in the Republican senatorial race. Democratic leaders have been worried in the "silent" suppression of Roger Brennan, a banker and power in politics for two decades who stood to run for an elective office, thereby detracting from the prospects of Smith. He has pledged his support toward repealing or amending the prohibition act if elected. His opponents are James T. McDermott, former congressman, and James O. Monroe.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN FLAT WAS RUM-POISONED

Medical Examiner David C. Downes today stated that death of Mrs. Mollie Hecker, whose body was found in the apartment of John Cerio, 41 Pemberton Cambridge street, Boston, was due to poisoning.

Mrs. Hecker was a respondent since the death of her husband, three weeks ago, subject to bail pending.

Medical Examiner Downes stated that previously gone to bed in this city Mrs. Hecker and others, who were visiting him in another room. Thomas Welch was with Schneider during a whole month, and who was arrested with him on a charge of bootlegging. Police said these will be no other charges against him.

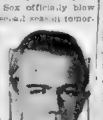
YANKEES FIRST FOE OF RED SOX

Hugmen Rated Highly, but Natives Expect to Upset Them

By NICK PLATLEY

Fired with real hope and spirit, the Boston Red Sox officially blow open the 1926 baseball season tomorrow afternoon in Fenway Park when they tackle the Yankees in a happy vein. Ahead of them is a fresh, clean stretch that has been swept with optimism, but woe and disillusionment.



Nick Platley

Lee Fohl's 1926 model will win a lot of ball games and will not be used for a foot rest for the remainder of the American League season. It doesn't figure to be a pennant contender, but it has fighting spirit and nobility, and that's the proper method of starting toward the top.

The Fohlmen displayed a punch and a lot of good defensive stuff against the Braves. The lack of a real shortstop cramped the team's style in the field, but despite the handicap, the athletes beat the Tribe once and gave the Bambinos a highly rated ball club a fine rub while doing so.

This is not any criticism of McCann. That young man is a second baseman, and was just as strange and befuddled on his new job as a traffic officer suddenly switched into the foot walking department.

The Red Sox have really started to build up. They are better in all departments than they were last year, sufficiently improved to give their supporters some real foundation for dreams, with another campaign trembling on the horizon.

Gaston is a better catcher than the Fenway has owned for at least five or six years.

Limke is a all one of the best of the pitchers who is Ruffing and Wingfield's great last year, should be better with that experience tucked away.

Hamilton is an efficient third baseman, away ahead of his predecessors, and Regan will be in the running for second base very long if his arm stays well, and it has shown signs of trouble. Herrera is a real fielder, has the call on second base, but the boys tell us that McCann is good enough to support the dusky hero, if the latter slips a bit.

The outfield shows more improvement than any one section of the club. Jenkins, Longford and Leathe can all ramble around the garden in left much better than Vache or anybody else who parked there a year ago. Flagstead is a great outfielder, as he proved full well in the first game.

Yanks Leave for Boston Today to Open Season

NEW YORK, April 12 (N.S.S.)—Having compiled an impressive string of 13 straight victories over the Brooklyn Dodgers and eighteen straight, including games with other major league teams, the New York Yankees will leave hitherto this afternoon for Boston, where they will open the American League season tomorrow with the Red Sox. They concluded the Brooklyn series yesterday with a 14 to 1 victory over the Dodgers, Collop and Lazzeri getting homers and Ruth three doubles.

CHECKER STARS MEET IN BIG TOURNAMENT

Lovers of the game of checkers will gather at the Wells Memorial (Checker Club, Boston, on Patriots Day, April 19. This event is an annual affair, which attracts both expert and amateur.

The tournament will start at 10 o'clock with the Hitler tourney, trophy for which has been donated by Senator Hitler. The strongest 16 experts available will compete in an elimination contest.

The outstanding feature will be the Roswell Ingersoll memorial trophies of the Class B grade and upward. As in former years four prizes will be awarded to the four highest in the standing at the Tuttle's Race Track.

While no affair of national import has been issued, the players who participate in the tourney at Tuttle's hope of this event will be the start of a new era in checkers in this section of the country.

CARLARIS RESTORED TO RACING FAVOR

San Diego, Cal., April 12 (A.P.)—One of Carl Carlaris' favorite mounts, a shining example of the former ruling favorite of racing at Tijuana, and winner of a fortune for Mr. T. Anderson, his owner, was restored last Monday when the horses of the Agua Caliente stable were restored to good standing at the Tijuana Race Track.

While no affect of Volstead had been noticed, the stewards who presided over the meeting at Tijuana's Empire of Mexico owner had to say in the ban pending the result of an investigation, ordered a week ago, into an alleged violation of a claiming rule.

BROWN OPENS LACROSSE WORKOUTS ON TUESDAY

Providence, April 12—A Brown varsity lacrosse squad will assemble for the first time in the history of the institution Tuesday. Thirty-five men will work out for an hour under the direction of Coach B. H. Hicks on Lincoln Field in preparation for the Spring meets.

Lacrosse has been played during one season on an informal basis and sufficient interest has been created to warrant the establishing of the sport on a varsity basis. A schedule is being arranged but only one game has been announced, that with Harvard on May 1.

CLUBS AWAIT FIRST TILTS

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, April 12.—The national habit again will confront the populace in eight major league baseball cities tomorrow, and the mortality rate among elderly females will be quite appalling. Many a fleshy grandmother will die in agony before sundown, while as much a necessity to the success of opening day ceremonies as the throwing out of actors, chests and first balls.

Upward of a quarter of a million customers, weather willing, will view the proceedings, and the chances are excellent that there will be considerable loss of life in the turnstiles. The boys simply don't take their opening day or let it slide.

The inaugural schedule calls for the following:

MONDT TO GRAPPLE WITH RUGGED RIVAL

That the testimonial to George Tuohey will be an affair out of the usual matches is evidenced by the fact that "Tevis" Mondt, the Canadian star, will face one of the clever men he ever has been called on to meet in the main event of the night, an affair to be best two out of three falls in a twelve-foot ring. It is likely that Pinky Gardner, the crack middleweight, will be seen in action against a well known wrestler.

The committee today announced that a clerical error made it appear that the date was to be April 12. The event is to be held at the Arena on April 21.

Marathon List Totals 74

Carl Koski the little Finnish runner who was fifth in the B. A. A. Marathon last year, will be one of the starters in the event next Monday. Other late entries are Nestor Erickson, who finished eighth last year; August Fagerholm, who was one of the team representing the United States in the 1924 Olympic games; Joe Zaia, who ran in 1924 at Paris; Hunter Fitch, Max Lamp, Samuel Hitchcock, Ernest Hall and John Zaccagnino of Waltham, which brings the list up to 74.

WELL-KNOWN GOLFER DIES

George J. Murphy, the widely known golfer, died this morning at his home in Newton. He was one of the most ardent supporters of golf in the section of the country. He was a member of Wollaston Chaska Rider and Edwards of Manchester, Vt.

Mr. Murphy had been ill for about three months. He golfed a short last September from which he never recovered. He was on a vacation in Manchester, Vt., at the time he was taken sick and was rushed to his Summer home at Rivers Mass.

Mr. Murphy was the treasurer of the Petting Lardner Co and the late father of Eddie Murphy one of the most promising young golfers in the country. Eddie is a student at Amherst.

Mr. Murphy leaves a widow two daughters Betty and Doctora, and a son, Edward M. He will be buried from his late home at No 15 Langley Road, Newton Center.

"SNOOKS" DOWD BACK IN MAJORS; NOW WITH ROBINS

New York, April 12 (A.P.)—Raymond R. (Snooks) Dowd has returned to the major baseball league.

Several years ago Dowd arrived in the camp of the Philadelphia Athletics and impressed critics with his speed. Since then he has been in the American Association, the Southern Association, the International Texas and Eastern Leagues.

Dowd led off for Brooklyn batting order yesterday and manufactured a run-making single late in the game.

If Dowd starts at second for Brooklyn as seems likely he will be performing alongside a fellow townsman, Rabbit Maranville. Both learned their baseball in Springfield.

GIANTS PLAN PRACTICE DESPITE COLD BREEZES

New York, April 12 (I.N.S.)—In spite of chilly breezes, the New York Giants were scheduled to work out at the Polo Grounds today as a tune-up for the local opening of the National League season with the Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow.

The Giants wound up their series with the Senators in Washington yesterday with a 5 to 2 victory, giving them the series at five games to four.

Pirates-Senators Loom as Pennant Repeaters

Chicago, April 12 (A.P.).—The tumult and the shouting that died last October begins again tomorrow in the major baseball world.

The captains and the kings of swat have returned to their Northern habitat after limbering up in Southern and Western training camps.

The 16 American and National League teams that enter the 1926 lists contain both known and unknown possibilities. The strength of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, and the Washington Senators, winners of the American title, is not denied in any quarter. The dopesters figure each in the fight for first place in their respective leagues, but several other strong contenders for the crowns are strong in the betting, and one or two dark horses may appear before October days.

Tufts Notes

Coach Nash mentor of the baseball club at Tufts, is satisfied with the showing the team made against the Northeastern nine at the Oval Saturday and is now ready to meet Dana worthy opponents the coming week.

Today Lowell Textile will journey to Medford and should give the Brown and Blue team something to think about.

Friday Springfield comes to Medford and Nash intends to put forward his strongest lineup in order to turn back the persistent crew from upstate.

Boston University, which defeated Harvard on Saturday, is the Jumbonian opponent for April 17. This will be the most formidable club that Nash has to deal with to date and it would not be surprising to see Fred Sturgis on the mound. With nine players as Jon Mcdonald Ron Kinsella and O'Brien, shortstop in the line, the Medford ball tossers will have to work hard to garner another win before the Boys leave the Mystic to go which starts the 19th. The club will play six games, two on consecutive days, as follows: Tufts vs. Aggies and winding up the week with the New Agate nine.

Ben Bolger, the fastest 220-yard man of the college has reported to Billy Meade and is working out daily on the cinder track at the Oval.

Ben Nash has little to worry about in the way of substitute batting material. Mal Bowker and Lefty Smith are every bit as good as their 1925 counterparts.

Bethlehem Eleven Wins Soccer Title

The Bethlehem Steel soccer eleven annexed its fifth national championship when it trimmed the Ben Millers at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, and in so doing set up a record score of 7 to 2. The result was so decisive that it leaves no doubt as to the supremacy of the East in the kicking game.

The attendance of 18000 was a record crowd for a soccer game in this country and indicates that the game is fast taking hold.

HAVE A HEALTH FUND IN BUDGET

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

By MARTHA LEE
Number Twenty-Four

How about a health fund?

So many times to the [illegible] budget I hear this pathetic little phrase, "and a big bill for — knows." That I suggest a special allowance for doctor, dentist and hospital bills, particularly in families where there are young children.

Usually an item of health [illegible] "personal" or in times of real [illegible] out of savings. But it always [illegible] sirable to have a separate [illegible] in case of some still greater need [illegible] where no must have really [illegible]

Many families budget [illegible] health fund which is [illegible] of insurance not against [illegible] sure, but against [illegible] proper care. When, [illegible] all they [illegible] services of [illegible] start a [illegible] for anything [illegible]

This solution would [illegible] for Mrs. A. B., who wrote a very interesting letter. Mrs. A. B. must [illegible] her case. We [illegible] her either as to yourself

"There are four [illegible] adults and two girls [illegible] years old. I have [illegible] a bonus of $300 a year [illegible] mortgage. As I [illegible] pay [illegible] and [illegible] carry one for $10[illegible] 90 cents per week [illegible] insurance, which I [illegible] to have to [illegible] their future education.

"I put $25 into a checking account. Out of the $15 left, I pay $1.50 for Christmas club, $1.80 for milk, 90 cents insurance, 25 cents for church and school expenses. I have no furniture bills, but I don't seem to have much left, as I had to pay big doctor's bills and hospital expenses from a recent illness, when a budget would have been a godsend.

"My rent is $25 a month, heat averages about $7 a month, janitor service $4 a month, and as hot water is piped and each tenant pays so much for coal and attendance, I do my own washing, baking and dress making. Both children attend dancing class. My husband takes $2 pocket money, for which he saves part the I buy him smokes every Sunday to buy rubbers and other items. He has all meals at home and walks to work.

"For Mrs. A. B. I suggest a weekly health allowance of $4, which she can use to pay the bills she now has, and should later save for future emergencies. Her own insurance comes to 33 cents a week. Their other saving is covered by Christmas Club and the $300 a year, which they invest wisely.

Shelter comes to $3.77 a week

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

[illegible] Until you [illegible] of $15 [illegible] "Why [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] for $5 [illegible] family, try that. Savings $5, $15 on [illegible] shelter, $7.40; food $16, cooking, $2; operating, $4, personal $2.60. After the bill is paid, allow $1 per week for [illegible], if necessary, for food.

Home Budget Editor—Please tell me how to budget my money. My husband gets $24 a week, there are five of us in family. Rent does not come out of salary, as we have a pension which looks after that.

Mrs. E. MacN.

You do not tell whether your rent includes heat, nor if it is not how much to allow for operating. Without knowing your rent, I cannot tell whether you are paying too much or too little. For the $24, try this budget: Saving, $2, food, $13; clothing, $2; operating, $2.50, personal, $1.50.

Mrs. J. L. F. writes: "Our family includes three. My baby is bottle fed, and the materials for the formula cost just $3 a week. This item cannot, of course, be cut down, but you probably show me where I can save on other items."

Your baby's allowance is not too large, but if you yourself and your husband for food seems very high. I think you can both be well fed on $7.50 leaving $2.50 to add to your clothing and health funds. Your rent is reasonable, but could you not pare down a little on the operating? Your coal oil, gas and laundry bills total $6.50 a week, which is too high a proportion of your income

Mrs. W. L.—You ask me to budget $18 a week, but explain that it is an "allowance" and certain items do not come out of it. I should be very glad indeed to help you with a budget, but cannot do so unless you give exact figures of your income. A sheet is being sent you, and perhaps you will be able to make your own budget. If not, write again

Home Budget Editor—My husband's salary is $40 a week and there are six in the family. I pay $9 per month rent. Should I pay more? I have a good six-room tenement. We have coal to buy for Winter and run our car nine months in the year. Last year the children and I had a month's vacation and my husband two weeks. How much allowance should he have? He has lunch to buy, also cigars. Last year we were able to bank $25 a month after running the house and paying all expenses. I think with your help I would be able to save more. Also, what should I list the upkeep of the car? MRS. A. C. W.

How nice, ladies and gentlemen, a splendid manager! The budget editor feels it almost a presumption to improve on Mrs. A. C. W.'s budget. The rent is extremely low and she would be justified in paying more, but as they are satisfied and have a good vacation out of what they make, why change? Husband could probably get fun and smokes for $2.50 a week [illegible]

Mrs. J. S. wants a monthly budget for $200. Their rent is $40, they are paying $8 monthly on land, $13 on furniture and $14.50 for fuel.

Your land investment and insurances are saving, but all total only $13.40, and if there are only you two you ought to save $20 a month. After furniture is paid for, why not start a health fund, additional saving. Your smaller cost is too high for an unheated place, but if you do not want to move we will budget for it. Try this: saving, $20; shelter, $40, food, $40; clothing, $36; operating (gas and light, telephone and fuel), $22; personal (including furnitures, $36

Which of these runners would you rather be? The one who keeps ahead without effort, or the one who puffs and pants and can't keep up?

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

"Put was in the hall pouring out his worries to me—while you sat and a bit in here," I said. "And suddenly Jeanie appeared. Put took the stairs three steps at a time and actually got to her and had her in his arms before I could so much as turn my head away. And that appears to be all there is to it. They are going to make up without a lot of discussions and mutual recriminations and arguments. They are just going to forgive and forget and be happy without stopping to wonder who is most to blame"——

"Why do you say that so querulously?" Jim asked.

I pulled myself up with a start and laughed consciously and a bit nervously as I acknowledged

"I don't know why I spoke as I did—so fervently, I mean. I guess it seemed right to me—wonderful—that love is bigger than misunderstandings—that Pat and Jeanie, who have so much to forgive—can go to each other's arms and be satisfied not to know what there is to forgive."

"Could you do that?" Jim asked thoughtfully

"I don't know," I said lightly.

"Well then — consider — think! Could you?" Jim insisted.

"How do I know?" I smiled.

"You must know. You must find out. Our happiness—our lives—may depend on how much you can take for granted—how much you can forgive without explanation from me—or understanding on your part. How much can you forgive, Anne? Tell me."

Why did he ask that? Why did I hesitate so long vainly searching my heart for the answer?

"How much can I forgive?" I repeated thoughtfully. "How much have I already forgiven? How much more are you planning to ask me to forgive, Jim?"

Jim leaned forward in his big chair and stared at me through the growing shadows of the big studio at The Birches.

"I don't know why I asked you such a sentimental question," he said at last. "I guess it was what the law calls a hypothetical question. I suppose I'm sort of—dopey from all we've been through. Maybe my brain's still frozen"——

Jim ceased a laugh. It didn't ring true. His voice wobbled and broke, and then a queer, tense silence fell between us. Questions darted through my mind like goldfish swimming around their bowl. I found myself full of queries.

"Are you bored by life here at The Birches?" I wanted to ask. "Are you getting tired of the rule of devoted husband? Are you always playing parts? Have you found yourself yearning after pretty little Arlette? Do you see trouble coming and wish to ward it off? Can I help you? Are you really anxious to break yourself of your habit of philandering? Would you like to be a devoted husband for the rest of your life and steer clear of 'The Other Woman' who seems bound to appear on our horizon one of these days?"

Am I so [illegible] confident? Are you thinking of Evvy Mason and Val Crosby and Rosa Cordova and Ruth Gregory and the procession of ladies who have worried me so, and are you wishing you could avoid adding Little Arlette Valleau to the series?

But how could I ask Jim such questions? How could I offer to help him conquer his tendency to seek amusement in change—in flirtation and philandering?

Jim's voice broke in on my reverie. Now there was a querulous note in it "Didn't you hear me speak to you?" he asked

Jim [illegible] laugh. It didn't ring true. His voice wobbled and broke, and then a queer, tense silence fell between us. Questions darted through my mind like goldfish swimming around their bowl. I found myself full of queries.

"Are you bored by life here at The Birches?" I wanted to ask. "Are you getting tired of the rule of devoted husband? Are you always playing parts? Have you found yourself

"Didn't you hear me give [illegible] different answers at once I returned.

"You didn't say a word," he protested.

"I know it. But I thought a lie [illegible] Jim laughed. The [illegible] had not gone from his voice, but he was obviously amused as he demanded:

"Do you think we are [illegible] feebly attuned that I can read [illegible] thoughts?"

"No—worse luck. I wish [illegible]"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

About two months ago I met a young man in whom I am interested. I met him at a dinner party at my aunt's and he took me home. I have not seen him since; but since he was so courteous to me, will it be considered improper to call him on the telephone some day for just a friendly talk? I feel as though he would have gotten in touch with me but perhaps did not remember my name and did not want to ask his friends. "DOUBLE."

IT would be quite out-of-place for you to telephone to this gentleman, my lady. It would be presuming on you and would certainly give him the impression that you are pursuing him. And if you think that he hasn't spine enough to find out from mutual friends what your name is, then you certainly cannot think that he would make a very desirable friend. No, lady, you have the wrong psychology. If men wish to pursue they find the way—even the most modest of 'em! I have a feeling that your paths will cross again—so bide your time. "He also serves who only stands and waits," you know.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would you kindly let me know if it is proper for a woman to wear a veil when she is going to be married a second time? F. M. T.

NO. It is not correct for a woman to wear a veil or orange blossoms for her second marriage. Nor is it correct for her to wear white. It is the best form for her to have a very simple marriage, either in the chantry of the church or in her home or her parents' home. She should wear an afternoon dress of some shade (not white), and usually the second brides wear hats. Or she may wear a suit.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am engaged to be married and I am not sure whether to put my own, or my future husband's initials on my linens

I know that I should put my own on when my future is unsettled, but when my wedding day is just a few weeks away what should I do? I would like very much to put his on. P

YOU should use your own initials on your linens. The linens that you add to your supply after your marriage should, of course, be embroidered with your two first initials and with your husband's last initial—so won't that comfort you?

Mother—

Be sure you get Pepsodent for child's teeth and gums

DO you want your child to have prettier teeth now, and better protection from serious tooth and gum troubles all through later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge mothers to use as science's latest attainment in tooth and gum care.

Film . . . what is it
The enemy of teeth and gums

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign—an invitation for tooth and gum troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth.

Mere brushing won't do. You must combat it. Ordinary dentifrices fail to fight that film successfully.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it and imperil both teeth and gums. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old-type methods failed to combat it. So men of science engaged themselves in discovering an effective combatant—one new and different from any known.

It removes that film
And Firms the Gums

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied—combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, gently, removes it; then firms the gums. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today at your druggist's. Or mail the coupon.

Queen Victoria Discusses Alexandra's Visit

will please people very much that the Prince of Wales like his parents, should marry from affection.

I must say that I like very much to my future petite-nièce, and the dear child is very kind to me.

Bertie expressed the wish to remain till the 10th, and I need not say that it really is very happy that they are here, and that things have been arranged here it will leave them a pleasant recollection.

Prussian King Arrives

Extracts From the Queen's Journal.

COBURG, 12th Oct.—Heard two days ago that the King of Prussia (Emperor William I.) wished to come and see me for a few hours. He arrived this morning at 8, and at half past 9, as soon as I was dressed, I saw him in my room. He was very much affected, and was most kind, evidently much moved at seeing me. He did not allude to politics, only said, with tears in his eyes, how much he felt the weight of his position. He breakfasted with me and the two girls, the other children being in the room.

OSBORNE, 1st Nov.—Saw Lord Granville (President of the Council) and felt very nervous and anxious. Then Lord Palmerston (Prime Minister) and Lord Stanley came into dear Albert's room, and I read with a trembling voice the declaration of Bertie's marriage. I found it very trying. The children were quite distressed at my pale face, when I came down to luncheon.

Alexandra's Visit

5th Nov.—News came at quarter to 8 that the Black Eagle was in sight. It was still foggy, but moonlight, and various rockets and signals had been decided on. The children were greatly excited.

Oh! how terribly I felt the contrast with former days and now!!! At last, at 9, dear Alexandra arrived with her father, looking very lovely and well. A gleam of satisfaction for a moment shone into my heart. I took "our" future daughter upstairs to her room. The event I had so fondly, eagerly, looked forward to for years, feeling it would be such a joy in comparison to the weddings of our daughters, and the sorrow of parting with them, was now fully coming to pass. How I realised this as I clasped dear Alix in my arms!

15th Nov.—Saw Sir Charles Wood (Indian Secretary) and showed him some drafts of Lord Russell's, together with my answer, explaining that he had not shown one of them to the Cabinet. Pointed out the foolishness of the system pursued with such bad results, in constantly irritating France about Italy, which I had desired should not be done.

Queen Watches Dispatches

15th Nov.—Saw Lord Granville and had a long conversation with him on the various points I had mentioned to Sir Charles Wood, regarding Lord Russell not having shown the dispatches properly. Lord Granville advised my saying and doing nothing further on the subject now. Saw Sir Charles Wood later, who urged me not to call Grand to account for support, excepting when I disapproved of the policy pursued, which I assured him I should never do, unless I could not possibly avoid it. I said I felt bound to watch that no objectionable dispatches should be sent. Upon the whole Lord Russell had been very amiable to me soon up to these last two dispatches.

The King of the Belgians to Queen Victoria.

LAEKEN, 20th November, 1852.

MY BELOVED VICTORIA.—I have to thank you for your dear sad letter of the 18th. How much everything must have recalled those days in December last (when Prince Consort Albert died)! We had then the same sort of weather, gloomy and melancholy to an extreme. Alix's sweet face is so very much [illegible] on reason it would have been the Edward's [illegible] soleil, that it must at least for moments cheer you. It is a great acquisition, and one may expect to see that menage going on well.

Pleads for the South

Poor Prince Christian wishes to succeed in Denmark. It is therefore natural that he should show himself very Scandinavian. The Greeks are right to wish for an English King, also in the hope of making the acquisition of the Ionian Islands. The task will be very difficult, particularly as a constitutional government; a dictature would be more likely to succeed

I have seen with regret your Cabinet giving for the moment way [illegible] de non recevoir to the French proposition (for mediation between North and South in the United States Civil War.

In Heaven's mediation is nothing more than an offer to bring about an understanding, and could in the present instance never by any means be understood as a hostile measure. The refusal on the part of the Americans would have led naturally to the recognition of the South. At present your Government admits that the two fractions are belligerent; recognising this implies already that the Southern States are independent, as no fraction of States could make war on the remainder in this regular way without being independent of the other. The point of most vital importance to England is, that there should be two great Republics instead of one, the more so as the south can never be manufacturing and the North, on the contrary, is so already to a great extent, and actually in many markets a rival.

Prince Alfred? Never

Memorandum by Queen Victoria.

WINDSOR CASTLE, 25th Nov., 1862.—The Queen saw Lord Russell (Foreign Secretary), who expressed much anxiety upon the question of the Greek succession, and feared it might become very dangerous. The Queen could not understand why people seemed to think that there was the possibility of her wishing Prince Alfred to accept the Crown, and she wished it could be contradicted.

This Lord Russell did not seem to wish, for he was afraid it would lead to the election of the Duke of Leuchtenberg, which was much to be deprecated; he named Lyons, like Lord Palmerston, not to appear to see the total impossibility of Prince Alfred's becoming King, till the Queen told him that upon no earthly account and under no circumstances would she ever consent to it, and she knew that this Secret Lives!

In every human life, sooner or later, there comes a crisis. Something of great consequence happens. It may be a crisis in an affair of love or marriage, or some other tangle of human relationship. It may be honor that is threatened, business that is imperiled, happiness that is endangered. Even life itself may be at stake.

The world is full of such dramas — dramas of love and hate, of temptation and wrong, of struggle, defeat, triumph and tragedy. But most of these comedies and tragedies are played behind a cloak of secrecy and silence. We learn about them only when their stories are told.

True Story Magazine for May is rich in just such stories—true-life narratives that grip the imagination, tug at the heartstrings, and leave you inspired by what you have read. Don't miss this wonderful issue.

A PIRATE of HEARTS

By BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "GILDED KISSES"

The Thrilling Love Story of a Boston Girl and the Husband Who Strayed

CHAPTER XLI.

Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.

RANNY held Sylvia's arm in a grip of steel as they crossed the lawn.

Ranny jumped into his waiting car ahead of Sylvia, leaving her to scramble in as best she could.

Then, without waiting for her to get settled in the seat, he sent the car ahead with such suddenness that she was thrown violently against him.

He made no apology, and they covered the first of the homeward journey in stony silence. Then Ranny began to speak.

Low as his voice was, it was savage. He seemed to grind the words from between set teeth.

"How long has this sort of thing been going on?" he growled.

"What sort of thing?" asked Sylvia, feeling just as guilty as if she actually had let Woody King make love to her, out on Lolly's back porch.

"Your letting every Tom, Dick and Harry kiss you!" Ranny answered. "You must know what sort of thing I mean! Don't try to pull the innocent gag!"

In the darkness Sylvia flushed painfully.

"You know I never let fellows make love to me, Randall Phelps!" she cried, indignantly. "You ought to know me well enough to know that I don't let them!"

"Huh!" he laughed, "I'm just beginning to know you! I'm just beginning to find out about you. You might get away with this tale tonight if Eddie Carter hadn't told me about the party you went on with Fay and those two birds of hers—or if you hadn't been seen coming out of Peter Vik's house that night with him! You might have pulled the wool over my eyes—"

He stopped, choked by his own anger.

Beside him, Sylvia said nothing at all. She knew that it was worse than useless to argue with Ranny when he was in a mood like this—useless to protest her innocence. Words would only fan the flame of his anger.

Sylvia Meek

He was speaking again, above the noise of the wind that hummed past them: "Don't get it into your head that you can act like Fay and the rest of those wild women and get away with it, because I won't stand for it, so paste that in your hat!"

It was on the tip of Sylvia's tongue to say: "Yes, and how about you? I suppose it's all right for you to fuss around the way you do! I suppose it was all right for you to soul-kiss that girl tonight—that Elsie Leopold girl who goes joy-riding with strange men!"

But she said nothing.

For one thing, she hated to quarrel with Ranny. She would wait until tomorrow, when he was cold sober, and then she'd explain to him how Woody King had taken her by surprise and kissed her!

For another thing, she was delighted that he was jealous of Woody, for didn't it prove that he still loved her? Of course it did, she told herself.

As meekly as an Indian squaw following her red-skinned lord, she followed Ranny up the stairs of the apartment, to the door of The Nest.

He stood aside to let her pass into the little hallway and then went back down the stairs to put the car in the garage, as she supposed.

But a minute later she heard Ranny start the car and drive away down the street.

She ran to the window and perched it just in time to see the tail-light of his car whisking along Beach street. Ranny was going back to the party. He was going back to Elsie Leopold, there was no doubt about it!

The next morning at six, Junior's small voice wakened Sylvia, as it did every morning—"Mother! Mother!"

Where's Ranny?

Sylvia roused herself with a yawn she was only half awake.

She stretched and turned over with a long, sleepy sigh. Oh, how lovely it would be to lie in bed until noon; she was so tired that she ached all over.

Then she remembered that she had to get up early; the Lister twins were coming at eight o'clock for their music lesson.

Ranny's bed had not been slept in

As she bathed the baby her mind was busy with Ranny.

Where could he have gone last night? Back to Lolly's house?

Where had he slept?

Where was he now, for mercy's sake?

Sylvia remembered one other night when he had not come home—the night when Junior was born. And to this day she didn't know where he had spent that night!

He had never told her, and she had never had the courage to ask him where he had been. He hated to be nagged and cross-questioned by her.

"I'm not going to be henpecked!" was one of his favorite expressions when Sylvia asked him questions about himself.

And so she had got herself into the habit of never asking him anything personal. She didn't even know how much money he made these days.

He spent most of it on himself anyway.

His chiffonier was filled with shirts of dull white silk and the finest of underwear. He had silk socks, and socks of wool, hand-knit by Scotch peasant women. His handkerchiefs were monogrammed and had hand-rolled hems. The long box on the top of his chiffonier held fifty ties, soft and bright-hued and expensive.

Calls on Fay

One of Sylvia's weekly tasks was to steam and press these ties. She usually did it on Saturday night when Ranny was out playing cards.

It was a labor of love. She adored to see Ranny well-groomed and handsome.

He said that it was good business to look well, and she wanted to do everything she could to help him along in the world of business. She knew that it was part of a wife's job to help her husband get along.

At eleven o'clock, with Junior in her arms, Sylvia rang the doorbell of Fay's apartment.

A maid, trim in black dress and white apron, answered the door.

"Mrs. Carter's not up yet," she said primly, but at that moment Fay opened a door down the long corridor and called: "Is that you coming along, Sylvy?"

As she passed the dining room, Sylvia caught a glimpse of Eddie Carter at breakfast. His half rose from his chair when he saw her.

"Hello, Sylvy!" he said in his fat voice. "Have a cup o' coffee?"

Somehow he struck her that morning as pathetic. Plump and sleek and well-dressed as he was, there sat was a look of misery about him. Even his round cheeks seemed to hang over his collar in a hopeless, unhappy way.

"What's wrong with Eddie this morning?" she couldn't help asking Fay when she went into the silk-hung, perfume-scented bedroom where the mistress of the establishment was having breakfast in bed.

Fay shrugged her bare shoulders that peeped above her black georgette nightgown.

"How should I know what's wrong with him?" she asked, holding out her thin arms to Junior. "I suppose he's been making a pig of himself again. I noticed last night at Lolly's that he was eating everything in sight!" She shuddered, daintily.

Then she called to the maid who was passing in the hall: "Shut that door, Gertrude!"

Eddie's Place

Fay never said "Please" or "Thank you" to anyone. She had been spoiled before her marriage by her mother and father, and now she was being spoiled by Eddie Carter. She simply held out her hands to him for money and jewels and everything else she wanted, and she gave him nothing in return for them. Nothing, that is, but her bad-tempered self.

Five minutes later an apologetic knock came on the panels of the blue-green door. It looked at Sylvia and made a little face.

"Come in," she said, with a sort of groan, and Eddie lumbered in.

"I'm leaving now. Anything you want me to do for you today?" he asked, bending over his wife to kiss her.

Fay quickly lifted her coffee cup to her lips so that he couldn't touch them. And Eddie kissed her on her freckled cheek.

"Don't come home for dinner unless you want to eat alone tonight," she said to him coldly, "because I won't be here."

Eddie stood gazing down at her with his hands in his pockets as if he wished he had nerve enough to ask where she was going to be. But, after a tense moment, he turned on his heels and walked out of the room, looking more unhappy than ever.

Fay threw a glance of scorn and hate at his departing back.

Then her face slowly softened and she raised her eyes to Sylvia's, questioningly, as she lit her after-breakfast cigarette.

"Tell me, what's on your mind?" she said softly.

Sylvia dropped her eyes so that the thick lashes made a blue-black shadow on her cheeks. One nervous finger traced the pattern of the embroidery that covered Fay's breakfast tray.

Then, suddenly, she threw her chin up and asked the question that she had been trying to ask for fifteen minutes:

"Did Ranny come back to Lolly's party after he took me home last night, Fay?" she asked.

Fay nodded, green eyes wide.

"I'll say he did!" she answered slangily, "but he didn't stay long. He collected that Elsie What's-her-name, and they dashed off in his automobile. That was the last I saw of 'em. Eddie and I left the party early."

Bad News

Sylvia said nothing for several minutes. With quiet eyes she watched Fay begin to dress for the day.

"Well," she said at last, and there were tears in her voice, "he didn't come home all night, anyway. I haven't the faintest idea where he is, and—and I don't know whether I can stand it much longer!" She pressed her hands against her temples as if her head ached unbearably.

Fay could see that she was shaking all over. She came to her and put her arms around her.

"We've all got to stand some thing in this world," said Fay, who hardly ever was serious about anything. "For instance, I don't know whether I can stand living with Eddie much longer. I hate him so!"

As Sylvia looked at her, startled, the trim little maid knocked on the door and opened it.

"Someone on the wire for Mrs. Phelps," she said, and gave Sylvia the extension telephone that stood on Fay's bedside table.

Lolly Boyle's clear little voice spoke in her ear: "Sylvy, I'm at mother's house. Dad's had a stroke, and the doctor doesn't think he's going to be with us—"

Her voice broke, and then she went on bravely: "Mother wants you to come over here and bring the baby. Dad wants to see the baby—right away, please!"

"Is Ranny there?" Sylvia asked.

But Lolly had hung up.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Lolly tells Sylvia where Ranny spent the previous night. Father Phelps goes away for a rest. Who takes charge of the business during his absence. Find out in the next chapter.

"I don't know whether I can stand it much longer," Sylvia said to Fay, discussing Ranny's staying out all night.

Garbage Disposal Important

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU who live in cities are vitally interested in the collection and disposal of garbage and refuse. In towns of 10,000 to 25,000 population this is one of the most important and also one of the most neglected of sanitary problems.

In larger cities the service is usually performed by a branch of the city government, but when the contract is let to an individual, the problem of dual authority arises, very often complicated by political interests.

In small towns the officials often hesitate to ask for funds for the purpose and expect every citizen to take care of his own garbage.

There are usually four or five scavengers who are paid by the individual householder; sometimes they are supervised by the municipality, but in many places they are responsible to no one and collect for their own purposes, either to feed hogs or to plough into the ground for fertilizing. They are naturally inclined to be lax.

Hauls rarely present a serious problem, because the service is not adequate for the increased population in the Summer.

As an instance, a typical small town near Boston, which has a population of 14,500, and 2,000 Summer residents, the householders pay from a dollar to a dollar and a half every month to the scavengers. About a third of the population was served at a cost of $4,816. Collections and disposal were both unsatisfactory, the scavengers often left garbage about insufficiently covered and householders often neglected to supply proper receptacles.

Typical systems in other small towns fall into the two divisions of separate and combined.

In the separate system each kind of refuse is collected by itself and the garbage is fed to hogs, reduced or fermented.

In the combined system, garbage, rubbish and ashes are all collected together and dumped, buried or incinerated.

When the contract system of collecting is in force the contractor is usually a farmer primarily; sometimes the city collects and transports to a central place where the contractor takes the garbage and disposes of it outside the city. As contracts are only let for a short term the successful bidder cannot afford to supply proper equipment, the most satisfactory system is collection by the municipality.

Equipment varies with the size of the community.

A town of 150,000 uses trailers with a metal body and side dump. These are hauled in a train to the districts where they are needed and then uncoupled and drawn singly by horses. When they are loaded they return to the central point, are made up again into a train and drawn to the disposal point.

The reduction process is suitable only for cities which have sufficient garbage to make grease extraction profitable.

The authorities should also have control of the slaughter house refuse. Some one point must be a considerable distance away from human habitation on which to collect it.

Incinerators are clean and may be installed near dwellings.

Two small plants, though more expensive than one large one, are often more economical because they reduce the hauling distance. If coal must be used the cost is increased.

Feeding garbage to hogs is a good method financially, but, like reduction, requires expert managing.

Burying is economical if used where ground needs to be filled in, but the dump unless properly supervised, will soon attract rats and mosquitoe

Fashions and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

THE Badge of Smartness—In coat fashions is coming to be represented by badger fur, for this blonde fur is universally flattering to all types of wearers and is particularly suitable for Spring wear. Coats in tweed and in rough-like weaves—in all of the soft, delicate new shades—are greatly enhanced by badger trimming.

A smart tongue—is, in its proper place, a valuable asset to any woman. A tongue cannot be too large for the new Parisian slippers, whose style depends upon its size and that of the novelty buckle which matches the heel. The latest buckles and heels, for street shoes, simulate beautifully grained wood.

Water On Ducks' Backs—Has no more effect than it has upon the new waterproof silks that are used for sports frocks because it doesn't spot them. Resembling crepe de chine, this washable silk can be had in all the desirable sports shades

As Broad as It's Long—is the familiar remark which often terminates a dispute in which neither side wins. This description also applies to the newest, soft taffeta sport scarfs, which are large squares whose undisputed chic gives them first place among latest sports accessories of wool tone, they have a border all around of stripes woven in a contrasting shade of the same color.

The Boy Who's Taught Politeness

By L. Lamar Matthews.

DAVE JOHNSON pushed open the schoolhouse door, walked in and let the door close right in the faces of other pupils just behind him.

The next boy to arrive was Blaine Durwood, who stood holding open the door until two little girls had entered.

"Is it raining outside, Dave?" asked Miss Kent, the teacher.

"No," was the boy's answer.

A few minutes later the teacher turned to Blaine and asked, "Did you see the janitor in the hall as you came in?"

And Blaine replied, "No, Miss Kent."

During the day two teachers were talking just outside the class-room door, when Blaine and Dave came in from recess. Dave walked between the two. Blaine walked behind one of the teachers, thus avoiding the rudeness which his companion displayed.

Now Dave Johnson is just as upright, industrious and ambitious as Blaine Durwood is; but he is not a favorite with his teachers nor is he popular among the students. Why? Because he has never been taught politeness.

From the time Blaine Durwood could walk and talk he has been trained to say "please" and "thank you" and "pardon me" at the proper time. He has been drilled until he knows better than to interrupt a conversation or to flatly contradict some one else.

He knows better than to push and shove and elbow his way through a crowd.

He has been taught when to rise and when to remain seated. He has learned to eat and drink without making disagreeable noises. As yet, he does not know all the fine points of social etiquette, but he has been carefully trained to think of the comfort of others.

It is not natural for children to be courteous. Politeness is something that has to be drilled into them every day both by example and by constant reminding. In the course of time it becomes second-nature.

Politeness costs less and brings the biggest dividends of any possible investment. Those who practice it all the time have a tremendous advantage over the crude, unmannerly ones. And fortunate are the children who have some one to teach them this lesson, early.

QUICK RELIEF FROM STOMACH DISORDER

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping in the bowels of these little sugar-coated, olive colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. Then, never force them to unnatural action.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them 15c, and 30c.

SHOPPERS' CHATS

The teacher had been busy getting material ready for her scholars, as the next week was to be what they called industrial week. Each scholar in the class was to make up a theme upon their industry and it meant that she must have all the information ready, and also know where to get the material for making the folders.

There were a few items which she was at a loss to know where they were sold, and had just about decided that the children would have to hunt them up for themselves when the principal came into the room and asked her how she was getting along.

"There are a few things I think I'll have to ask the pupils to buy for themselves, as I don't know where they are sold," she said, in answer to his question.

"I don't think I'd do that if I were you," he said. "There is a better way than that. I have found out several times where to buy articles through this source, and that is by making use of the Boston American Where-Can-I-Buy Service. Either write them or call up and I know that your problem will be solved. Then, you see, the children can all get their material at the same place and then, too, they will not have to spend a lot of their time hunting.

"You try this way and I know that you will find out from them where the material can be bought."

Operating as an all-around shopping and business information service, The Where-Can-I-Buy Service answers questions like the following:

Cards:—"Will you be kind enough to let me know where I can have some cards printed on a special kind of paper? I have my own dye. Thanking you in advance, I am yours very truly, J. G."

Corsets:—"Where can I buy in the city of Boston the Charis corsets? Although I have tried everywhere to locate their rep. I have not been successful as yet. Any assistance that you can give me will be much appreciated. Mrs. Y. T."

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A CHICAGO firm is trying to take a census of all the misers in the country, but most of them are so stingy they won't even give their names.

THESE fellows could have nothing and expect to keep it long on it.

ONE guy was so tight he borrowed his neighbor a chicken so that he could have an egg for breakfast.

HE went to a matrimonial agency the other day and asked for some of that free love he'd read about.

HE pinches a dollar bill so tight that he smothers all the germs.

WHEN he grabs hold of a greenback you can hear the microbes holler.

HE can hang on to quicksilver like it was molasses.

YOU'D think it had handles on it.

A FRIEND of his died last week and he sent flowers to the funeral C. O. D.

IF he owned Alaska he wouldn't give an Eskimo a snowball.

HE used to sleep at the Salvation Army every night to keep from wearing his own bed out.

HIS father's dead, but if he could telephone to Heaven he'd reverse the charges.

ONE miser was so tight that he used to borrow another fellow's false teeth to chew his steak.

HE bought a watermelon last Summer and then had the fruit man arrested because there was a seed missing.

HE never eats an all-day sucker without consulting a stop-watch.

AND then if it doesn't last until his time is up, he asks for his money back.

HE got fooled on an all-day sucker last year. He forgot to figure on daylight saving.

BUT he took it back to the candy store anyway and told them their clock was fast.

NO matter how early you get up in the morning you can't get the best of a miser because they stay up all night.

DAILY SHORT STORY

I HAVE two women in my family, a daughter and a mother-in-law. They are a legacy from my wife, who shirked her duty by dying. Once upon a time women got settled and dependable, especially when they were grandmothers, but now it means a second blooming more gorgeous than the first attempt.

My daughter and mother-in-law look and act like sisters and I am usually taken for the father of them both. I protested at first, but now I follow the line of least resistance; it may not be a line, but it is comfortable. It really does not make any difference, for I do not intend to add another woman to my family.

I am supposed to take care of them, but they really are my bodyguard, protecting me in various ways from the small annoyances of life which sweep an unsuspecting man should meet and settle for himself. I do not like too much attention; I prefer to select my own neckties, socks and handkerchiefs, and not such food as appeals to me, rather than the "keep-thin diet." I am watched and steered away from every attractive widow who crosses my horizon, for they do not intend any schemer to carry me off with the family income.

Sometimes I feel old, very old, beside my women. They have so much youth and energy that I cannot keep up to them, but I am not allowed to sit by my own fireside to smoke and read. It is rather hard on me, for I am a home-loving man with a fondness for old clothes. Not that I ever have any to indulge in, since they are given away at the first sign of shabbiness.

I have an up-to-date wardrobe that would be a joy to my son, if I had one. Really I hardly know the use and abuse of them all. I do not need to worry—my "girls" have the knowledge which I lack, and I always appear in the right tie and correct shoes. I confess that I am a credit to them.

They plan my pleasures as well as my pains. We spend our vacations together, for I am not capable of taking care of myself, except in the business world. I admit that I have a fairly good time, though it is not exactly my idea of a rest.

When they told me that we are going to Marblehead for the season, I could not conceal my delight. It is so easy to get among the crooked, winding streets of the old town that I felt I might have a real vacation without the defence of the harmless lie I usually raised for protection. I had forgotten that my mother-in-law had a sense of direction and a bump on location which nothing could confuse.

"How devoted your daughters are to you," a man said one day, as we sat smoking on the rocks near the old fort.

"They never desert me day or night," I answered. "Especially the older one."

"You will feel lonely when they are married," he said sympathetically.

"One can not expect to keep such dutiful daughters—"

"No," he agreed.

"Especially when a neat little fortune goes with each girl to her new home."

"Your wife been dead long?" he inquired.

"My younger girl was twelve; she is eighteen now."

"The other was old enough to be a great comfort to you in your—"

"Yes, yes; she took charge of everything."

"She looks capable—"

"Of being a mother to me," I supplied.

"Older daughters are often like that. You are blest in having one so reliable."

"Reliable is exactly the word to express my number one daughter," I told him.

"I have neither wife nor daughter," he said so sadly that I immediately felt a great desire to supply him with one.

"It isn't good for a man to be alone," I told him. "I would surely marry again if my girls were to forsake me."

"You cannot expect to keep them always," he said.

"I am not so selfish as to try," I answered, with a feeling of broad charity. "How old are you?" I asked.

"I am—well—I am—fifty," he told me reluctantly.

His age suited my plan exactly. "Just my own," I lied.

"You do not look it," he made reply.

"My girls insist on keeping me young. Julia, my number one girl, would hesitate to marry again for fear I might be neglected."

"She is a widow?"

"Yes. Married and lost her husband in one short year."

"Any children—a child?"

"One dead." His questions were close and lying was not one of my accomplishments.

"That is why she is so devoted to you."

"She is a treasure to any man," I said warmly, and changed the conversation to the races.

I learned that he owned a boat and a cottage at Newport with a bank account large enough to cover the cost. Also that he was a widower, one year old, and that he was ready to add another woman to his life. It seemed a safe investment for all concerned—the plan I had formed in my mind as I sat there on the rocks of Marblehead.

I worked hard during the days which followed. No mother with a debutante daughter ever spent herself more freely than I did for the glory of my mother-in-law. I pointed out to her the advantages that Mr. Beems—that was his name—could give to the woman he chose as a second wife, but I never lost an opportunity to make known to him some virtue she possessed.

I succeeded in my good work and impressed them both with my eloquence. As the season drew to a close, he did not depart as he planned, but remained to spend a few days with us. I had to run back to town for a week, and when I returned, he sought me and asked me for the hand of my daughter. I gave my consent and felt proud of my ability as a match maker.

Mother Juda once off my hands, I felt that I could manage my young daughter; and, perhaps, settle her in life as successfully as her grandmother.

I sat in blissful meditation on the rocks near the old fort when my daughter joined me. She pulled my hair and kissed me and called me a dear old daddy. I was surprised to learn that she was glad to lose her grandmother. They had been so close to each other, that I was not prepared to find her so unselfish, and told her so.

"Grandmother is a woman and understands. I believe it is you—you are half jealous of Amos"

"Amos!"

"Mr. Beems. Don't you know his first name?"

I thought she better say Grandfather Beems if she meant to be so familiar, but I did not speak aloud.

"Amos is going to take us all to Europe!"

It was just like my mother-in-law to plan for our future without consulting me. She was not at all grateful that I had invested her with good security.

"Is—is Amos willing to take us all on his honeymoon?" I asked in a voice that set my daughter laughing.

"You are funny, Daddy," she said. "One might think from your words that you did not like your new son-in-law."

So I was to be "father" to this stranger ten years older than myself. The idea made me furious. I turned my face to the sea and my daughter slipped away, flinging one word at me as she passed.

"Jealous!"

After a time my mother-in-law joined me and I turned to face a new misery. She looked wonderfully young and pleased with herself. I had a mind to tell her that she was under obligations to me.

"John," she said, taking a seat beside me, "I have managed this engagement with satisfaction to us all. The thought of parting with Edie made me hesitate, but Amos kindly offered to accept us all."

I gasped. So we were to remain as of old, with the addition of a man with an untried temper. I protested weakly. "Julia, he cannot marry us all."

"We are all going to Europe, John."

"I don't want to go on a honeymoon—your honeymoon."

"Are you mad, John? It is Elsie's honeymoon, not mine. He is going to marry your only daughter and with your full consent."

For the first time in my life I was seasick. It was awful the way the boats danced on the bay. Some of them turned over. The world was going around at a rapid rate and I clung to the rock as it moved; while a buzzing sound in my ears shut out all other noises. The day of judgment had come and I was responsible for it.

I felt a hand on my shoulder and a voice in my ear.

"Poor old John! I'll stay with you—I'll never forsake you—I promised your dying wife."

THE FOXY GRANDPA INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"BOBBY," said I, "run in and please ask Mary not to brush this cobweb away when she sweeps the porch in the morning. This little spider has worked so hard to build it and we might see something interesting in a day or two."

"All right, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, and in he flew.

We watched the little spider running back and forth as she put the finishing touches to her new house, and I laughed as I said:

"Remarkable how strong those silken threads are which she spins."

The next morning was one of those lazy mornings in Summer when you just want to sit on the porch and think how hot it is. I was glad to have the little spider to watch because I was even too lazy to read.

"She's caught one," said Bunny, and I opened my eyes. I was not really dozing. I was just resting my eyes.

"What's she got?" I asked putting on my glasses and leaning forward to see the web better.

"A whole meal for her," said Bunny. "A fly. Watch her eat it."

She was just about half way through this dainty morsel when buzz, buzz, buzz, came a great big blue bottle fly. He circled around above the web and how pretty his wings did look in the sunshine.

"He's on dangerous ground," said Bunny, shaking his head.

"I should say he is," I agreed, and just as I said the words right into the cobweb flew the big bottle fly.

He caught there for just a second and I believe that he could have freed himself in another moment. But there was no other moment, for him, because the little spider, although she was busy eating the little fly, stopped short and with a vicious plunge, jumped right on the big fly and in a minute she had stung him and hugged him so tight that he was numb and apparently lifeless.

She didn't go back and finish her meal of the first fly. Oh, no, she had other business to attend to. Her dinner could wait. Straightway she commenced spinning and running around and over the quiet body of the big fly—which was much larger than herself and in a very little while she had her prey sewed up and bound in a silken cocoon.

"He'll never get out of that alive," said Bunny, as we saw her drag him to one side and fasten him to the side of her web.

"What do you suppose she's going to do with him now?" asked Bobby.

"She is going back to eat her dinner—finish off the other one," I said.

"You might have thought she would have eaten the big one," suggested Bobby.

"Not she," said Bunny. "She's too thrifty. She's got the other big fly in cold storage for another day—perhaps a rainy one."

ACT I.

(Same as Act Two)

ACT II.

Easterner, just arrived, to Californian: Say, brother, I hear you've got quite a climate out here.

Californian (shrugging his shoulders): Oh, so-so.

East: You don't seem very enthusiastic.

Cal: Well, why should I? I've lived here longer than you have. I ought to know.

East: What's the matter with the place? I don't see anything wrong with it.*

Cal. (closing his eyes as if to shut out some painful memory): It's the sun. The sun.

East (wondering): Sun?

Cal.: Yes, the sun. Sun, sun, sun. Sun all the time. Always the same old sun (clinching his fist). My God, but it gets on your nerves!

East (sympathetically): There, old fellow, let's not talk about it. You're just tired, that all. We'll talk about something pleasant. Let me tell you about New York, where I live.

Cal. (his eyes brighten): Oh, New York! (His flatlessness seems to have suddenly taken flight.) Tell me about it.

East (simply): We call it God's country.

Cal. (repeating it after him in a dazed fashion): God's country.....

(A silence falls between them for a second and is then kicked aside.)

Cal.: Is it very slushy there, really?

East (proudly): It is the slushiest place in the world.

Cal. (sighing): It must be wonderful.

East: It is. There the ground is always wet under foot; the glorious damp gets into your bones.

Cal. (overcome): It does something to a man!

East: The temperature is never over 30 degrees. A cold, raw wind blows all day. We never see the sun.

Cal.: Think of it. (Passes hand over forehead.)

East: No sun at all. And no heat in the houses. Absolutely none whatever.

Cal.: You're kidding me.

East: It's a fact. Come East and see for yourself. Come out East to the Land of Opportunity. Pennsylvania is calling you. (Pulls out newspaper clipping and begins to recite from it): "Out where the rain is a little wetter, out where the storms are bigger and better. And the snow caresses your shins; out where the days are a little shorter. Out where a dollar's worth a quarter. That's where the East begins."

Cal.: Don't go on. You're torturing me.

Cal.: I've been here a year. I want to go back, back home to Iowa.

East—You came from Iowa? What part?

Cal.—Dubuque.

East—Shake, brother! That's my home town.

—NORMAN R. JAFFRY.

I came home one night with a new pair of shoes for my boy. I told him to try them on. He did without much trouble, but he disgustedly said, "They don't fit."

"Why," said I, "are they not large enough in the toes?"

"That's just it," says he, "they're too big."

Up bettimes and hose our mint bed, and thence to the printery. And no sooner sit at my stint than come a phone call from my dame, and she bleat prettily and say I did not busk her a kiss on leaving home this day, and she mightie wroth, and ask me to return thither home by tram car and give her the kiss that is her due and go thence back to the office. So I did hang up the phone. And so home by tram car to busk her the kiss, but finde she hath gone abroad. And so back to the printery and to my stint, mightily confused.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

IF "flamming youth" has anything on the thrilling thirties, the flirtatious forties and the frivolous fifties, these days, we fail to perceive it.

The hardest thing on earth for a pretty woman to find and keep is a man friend.

The average man can just pass THROUGH a room, and leave it looking as though a Kansas cyclone had struck it.

The modern bachelor is like a blotting pad. He can soak up all the flattery, sentiment and devotion a woman offers him, without ever spilling a drop.

A man is never so pathetic—and so funny—as when he sails in to show his wife "how easy and simple" it is to serve a meal, clean a house, or put the baby to sleep.

* * *

It may be foolish to marry a struggling young man—but then, there isn't any other kind. When it comes to marriage, they all struggle until their strength gives out, and they hear the minister pronouncing the blessing.

CHEERFUL MEN ARE ASSET

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel, made his most recent visit to Boston in connection with the launching of a vessel at the Fore River plant, a Bethlehem subsidiary. Since then he has traveled over a good deal of the world and has managed to retain his never say die type of optimism. Leaders in fields of business and finance frequently express to me the wish that we had more optimists in big business like Messrs. Mellon, Gary and Schwab.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON, APRIL 12, 1926

Mr. Vanderbilt Returns

He Has Done Useful Work. He Might Do Work Much More Important

THIS PORTRAIT OF MR. W. K. VANDERBILT, PAINTED BY AN AMERICAN ARTIST, GARI MELCHERS, SHOWS, AS YOU WILL OBSERVE, AN EXTREMELY CLOSE, INTERESTING RESEMBLANCE TO MR. VANDERBILT'S FATHER. MR. VANDERBILT HAS JUST COME BACK FROM THE GALAPAGOS ISLANDS.

THE ONLY THING THAT MAKES WEALTH USEFUL IS IMAGINATION.

Without imagination a rich man goes through life like a horse or a dog with a kind owner supplying its wants. The rich man WITHOUT IMAGINATION has his bank account for his owner. That takes care of him. He does nothing.

But wealth PLUS IMAGINATION can do anything.

The Rockefellers, John D., Senior and Junior, have imagination. They have established the greatest institute in the world to fight disease, and have given literally hundreds of millions to education and to science.

The younger Rockefeller offers a gift of ten millions to King Fuad the First of Egypt, that the treasures of the old Nile land may be perpetually housed and cared for.

Senator Stanford, of California, had imagination. His millions established a magnificent university.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst combined a great fortune with imagination and benevolence.

When Mr. Carter, who discovered Tut-ank-Hamen's tomb, was first sent to Egypt, as he told a gathering at Judge Garr's, by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, and under her direction he there made excavations and collections that she gave to the university at Berkeley.

The great-hearted Jacques Coeur, of the old days in France, had imagination, and poured out his fortune to protect his native land. He got a poor reward, as often happens "when you put your trust in princes."

Mr. Vanderbilt, whose picture you see here, shows imagination in the use of a large fortune inherited from his father, built up originally by Cornelius Vanderbilt, his great-grandfather.

Mr. Vanderbilt, just returned in his yacht from the Galapagos Islands, there devoted time and money to scientific exploration, collecting strange animals, fishes and other creatures, many heretofore unknown to science.

Among other things, Mr. Vanderbilt's expedition captured rare and little known dwarf sharks, never more than six inches long.

Mr. Vanderbilt doubtless was interested when he saw that small type of shark. He has seen some of the bigger kinds that came swimming around from the deep pools in Wall Street, after he and his brother and sister had inherited his father's fortune.

What other things might young Mr. Vanderbilt and other young men that inherit great fortunes do, if they developed from their fortunes all the power that is in them?

Money is "frozen thought and labor." Men that work day after day spend PART of what they produce for their own living. The balance goes as "profit" to build up a great fortune for Rockefellers, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Astors, etc.

As human intelligence and labor went into that money, and created it, so human intelligence and labor can be taken out of that money, to be set free in useful work, directed by imagination.

Mr. Vanderbilt's great-grandfather had imagination and intelligence enough to see that the stage coach was a thing of the past, that the steam railroad was the thing of the future.

He went into the railroad business. That's why this Mr. Vanderbilt has a big yacht.

This Mr. Vanderbilt was one of the first to appreciate and use the automobile. His "White Ghost" raced around Long Island with him at the wheel when he was a boy.

With a part of his fortune, plus his great-grandfather's imagination, he might do with the flying machine what his ancestor did with railroads. PERHAPS HE WILL.

W. K. Vanderbilt and his brother, Harold, are intelligent men. But both, like other sons of the very rich, start life with a terrific handicap.

Putting a thousand pounds on the back of a young racehorse wouldn't be as bad as loading the weight of ten or fifty million dollars on the ambition of a young man.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"'VENGEANCE is mine, I will repay,' saith the Lord."

But those words spelled almost nothing at all to the Christians that inhabited the globe one hundred years ago. Judging by their record they evidently thought that the Lord meant well, but they weren't going to take any chances. For vengeance was the best thing they did.

The offender against society fared ill in those stern days. And he didn't have to offend very hard, either. Prisons weren't "corrective institutions. They were frankly places of most hideous punishment. The men who entered the dark vaults hale and hearty came out haggard, half-rotten husks. This was eminently satisfactory to those who believed in the vengeance business. Unfortunately they also came out adepts at every sort of degeneracy and crime. This wasn't quite as satisfactory.

It almost made it seem as if this vengeance business might prove a boomerang, and that it might be better to leave it to the Lord, after all.

However, vengeance was a lot of fun and we hated to give it up. It took many hard knocks to convince us that it was poor economy to turn men out of prison worse than they went in. In fact, many of us aren't convinced yet. But, in general, the feeling is spreading that it does not pay to turn humans into hyenas.

So the Black Hole and the Strait-jacket have gone, and a New Idea has come in their place.

That New Idea is education.

Bad Men Stupid

Bad men are nearly always poor and stupid men. As boys they had trouble at home, failed at school, didn't make good on the job. Then, like the ignorant savages they were, they turned to the easy way of getting money. And the easy way led to jail.

Obviously it is impossible to keep all of our criminals in jail indefinitely. It has become equally obvious that it is most dangerous folly to turn them out of jail as stupid and vicious as when they entered. So the prison has now become what it always should have been—an adult school and workshop.

Will such education make all released prisoners brilliant, law-abiding successes? By no means. Education doesn't make all men outside prison walls brilliant, law-abiding successes. Why then should it work miracles with men who are heavily handicapped by bad mental and physical inheritance or acquired habits?

Education does, however, serve to protect society, as well as the man himself, by developing constructive intelligence in the prisoner. We have been amazed to find how much constructive intelligence there is in our prisoners. In fact, it becomes increasingly apparent that some of our brightest brains are on the wrong side of the prison wall!

We are not only giving courses of instruction in manual training, and the grammar and high school grades, within prison walls, but many prisoners are also taking extension courses from the various universities and making brilliant records in the same. The following report is taken from an address on "University Work in Prisons," by Mr. Bailey Crum, one of the instructors. It refers to the work being done by the University of California, as follows:

Study Tax Law

"Six prisoners at San Quentin are making a detailed study of income tax law. Others are studying drawing, philosophy, journalism, history, French, Latin, music, and, yes—biology.

"The desires and longings of the prisoners and their ambitions are expressed in the essays submitted by them. Their reactions to prison life serve to invest their work with real interest. Strange subjects — strange to us who are taught to think of the inmates of prisons as dull, plodding men—often appear. Prisoner No. 2364, for example, writes of the 'Law of Biogenesis,' and his papers receive the commendation of his instructors. Some of the men in prison write long religious diatribes. They quote the Bible voluminously. Some are even advocates of stringent blue laws. One prisoner, indeed, traces all the evils of man to the smoking of cigarettes. Many of the prisoners tell of the prison, but there are others who are extremely sensitive and dislike any mention of the fact that they are confined. Some of the prisoners write of things which seem out of keeping with prison life."

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Modesty has its sins, and a kiss its innocence.

Gratitude is the memory of the heart.

Whatever is popular deserves attention.

A heart unspotted is not easily daunted.

It is easier to make our conduct seem justifiable to ourselves than to make our ability strike others.

There are as many pangs in love as shells upon the shore.

Among other evils folly possesses this, that it is always beginning to live.

THREE MEN IN ONE, WHICH ARE YOU?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A COMMON slang phrase now is "Be yourself."

It is used in various instances.

It has a good deal of intelligence in it. Few people object to you when your motives are considered to be sincere and genuine. You are only objectionable when you put on motives that do not belong to you.

The thing people do not like most of all is to have you think that you can deceive them. As long as your actions are genuine and real, they know how to deal with them, but when they are convinced that you are endeavoring to overcome them by trying to borrow words or actions or motives from someone else, they do not like it.

So they tell you to "be yourself."

Of course we cannot express all of our emotions or feelings perfectly. There is a certain amount of self-control required by ordinary decency, but at least those feelings that we express should be those that are ours unquestionably and not those we think we should have.

A good many people are sorry for themselves, not because of the hard time they have, but because of the hard time other people think they ought to be having. It is very easy for a preacher or an actor or some such a one to think that he is working hard when everybody says that he is. If he would honestly look at himself and consult his own feelings alone, he would realize that he is not working hard at all.

Self-pity arises from a sort of borrowed notion of ourselves.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said that there were several Johns in one person—the man John is, the man John thinks he is, and the man John other people think he is.

If everyone of us could distinguish between the man we are and the man other people think we are, it would do much to facilitate our getting along with each other.

WHAT IS THE SENSE ABOUT "STATIC"? FOOLISH

You complain and cuss and detract from an evening's enjoyment because "static" interferes with what you want to receive over the radio.

Mighty foolish, isn't it?

You can't change atmospheric conditions, why allow it to peeve you?

You change from one station to another, restlessly; then become disgusted because you cannot find anything that fits in with your particular mood.

You think those who arrange programs for radio a lot of mutton heads.

Did you consider that you are getting it all for nothing?

Are you contributing anything to those who try to entertain you?

Your investment is in the receiving set, but you were not promised that the programs would please you every night.

Why not take "static" and other sorts of interference as a matter of course and stop making yourself unhappy and out of sorts with things beyond your control?

Why mar the pleasure of an evening at home for yourself and others in complaining as you do about radio vexations?

The Chance of a Lifetime

These Children Need You.

Are you willing to lend a hand to help a dependent boy or girl keep the God-given "place in the sun" which only "Home, Sweet Home" can provide?

If you are, here is your chance, and it's the chance of a lifetime; for, "Be It Ever So Humble" for a boy or girl "There Is No Place Like Home."

Recently the House of Representatives at Washington passed a bill—House Bill No. 7669—which is now pending before the Senate. The purpose of this bill is to protect dependent children under sixteen years of age, living in the District of Columbia, from losing their homes.

By this bill provision is made to extend the helping hand of government to the support of these children in their respective homes, instead of snatching them away from their own hearthstones and sending them to a Government institution, there to be brought up as wards of the State.

Dependent children in the District of Columbia have no protection that Government can give except that which the Federal Government provides.

For the District of Columbia is not a State, but a territory, directly and completely under the control of the Federal Government.

Therefore, if in your own home town you are in favor of helping a dependent child retain the companionship of the mother, or the older sister, or the crippled father, or the struggling older brother, rather than see that dependent child taken away to some institution, surely you must be in favor of doing the same humane service to the dependent children growing up in the shadow of the Capitol dome in the Federal City.

If you are willing to do for the dependent boys and girls of the District of Columbia what you would gladly do for the dependent boys and girls of your neighborhood, then obey the prompting of your heart this very day:

Write a letter to your Senator in Congress—to Senator Butler and Senator Gillett, if you live in Massachusetts; to Senator Hale and Senator Fernald, if you live in Maine; to Senator Moses and Senator Keyes, if you live in New Hampshire; to Senator Dale and Senator Greene, if you live in Vermont; to Senator Metcalf and Senator Gerry, if you live in Rhode Island, and to Senator Bingham and Senator McLean, if you live in Connecticut.

Tell your Senators in Congress that what the House of Representatives has done with this bill you hope the Senate will not fail to do before the present session of the Congress comes to an end.

Plead with your Senators in Congress not to neglect the dependent children of the District of Columbia merely because their fathers and mothers cannot vote—being residents of a territory, instead of citizens of a State.

Urge your Senators in Congress to report and pass the House bill without delay.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THE world is but a Wintry thing,
A dead dreams and old regrets, till comes a windy day in Spring to wake the violets! The white clouds flee across the sky like little wind-blown boats, and fieldward earliest songbirds try their shrill, far-reaching notes. A change stirs all the waiting land, faint hints of green appear, all Earth's vast forces understand the time of growth is here!
Though life lay dormant underground, forgetting sun and song and every sweet and pleasant sound; slept soundly there, and long, the time for sleep is ended now and Spring in bright array binds apple blossoms on her brow to greet the windy day! The sky shows but a sullen arch and Earth its joys forgets till comes a windy day in March to wake the violets!
